Fair Secretary's Dismissal Queried By City Alderman

Reasons for the dismissal of Miss E. L. Holmes, former secretary of the Edmonton Exhibition association, were sought by Ald. C. E. Gariepy at city council's meeting Monday. He said there were a "number of citizens" wondering about this dismissal and would like details. Mayor John W. Fry stated this was an internal matter between Miss Holmes and the Exhibition Association board.

Named Patron

Hon. J. C. Bowen, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta, who has consented to be patron of Edmonton's community chest. (See story Page 9.)

He also asked if there had been any allocation made of the $8,-300 paid annually for the war's duration to the association for use of the fair grounds by the R. C. A. F. for No. 3 Manning Depot.

A report was made to city council by T. E. Garside, K.C., city solicitor, that two letters written to the association's managing director, P. W. Abbott, K.C., seeking details of the disposition of the compensation payment made by the Dominion government through the city had not been replied to, and that a further request for this information would be made to the association in a communication going forward within the next few days.

City Commissioner John Hodgson stated the commissioners had requested this information but it had not been given them.

PLANS NOT MADE

Aldermen J. H. Ogilvie and Geo. Campbell, directors of the exhibition, stated the possible explanation of the lack of a reply to the commissioners' request and the city solicitor's letters was that the plans for 1942, when this money will be spent, had not yet been formulated. They stated that no discussion on the 1942 plans had taken place at meetings of the board they had attended.

Mr. Garside and commissioners stressed the fact they were not referring to the $8,500 paid by the Dominion government this year and turned over to R. J. Speers of Winnipeg, racing promoter, for depriving him of the fall racing meet held here in August. They said they were referring only to the annual payments of $8,500 due to begin in

Easterners Only Canucks Aboard Sunken Steamer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—(BUP)—The United States Maritime Commission announced today that eight Canadians aboard the sunken American-owned liner Pink Star, were all Eastern Canadians.

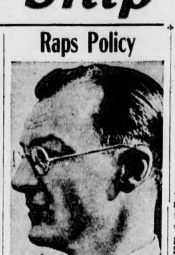

The Commission statement said the ship's master was John Mackenzie, of Halifax. Seven other Canadian crewmen were all from the Maritimes and Quebec, the commission said.

The fate of the men still was unknown.

Raps Policy

Maj. William D. Whitney, assistant to the co-ordinator of U.S. aid to Britain, today criticized Britain for having failed to impress the American public with seriousness of the battle of the Atlantic, declaring it was "better to run the risk of informing the enemy than run the risk of not telling your partner." Maj. Whitney, a New York attorney, joined the Scots Guards early in the war.

Equal Service Capital, Life Plea Of Labor

CALGARY, Sept. 23—(CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada rejected resolutions submitted calling for equal conscription of wealth and manpower and substituted the resolution re-affirming its 1940 policy.

That policy was "That there will be an equitable contribution on the part of capital comparable to that of the sacrifice of human life."

Resolutions from the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council and the Toronto Local 27, Brotherhood of Carpenters' and Joiners' Association asked changes in the conscription policy.

The Winnipeg resolution urged that the congress ask the Dominion government to "without fear or favor, apply the power they already possess to conscript wealth and take control of the entire war industry to the same extent as manpower will be conscripted. The Toronto resolution urged that "there shall be no conscription of manpower for any purpose whatsoever without at the same time conscripting the complete wealth and industrial and mineral resources of Canada."

The resolutions committee brought in a substitute resolution which was approved. It stated:

"That the congress reiterates its stand of former years and pledges its unwavering support to the Canadian and British governments in the prosecution of war against the aggressor nations to the end, and:

ELIMINATE GREED

"Be it further resolved, in order that the full resources of the country may be utilized for the achievement of victory, it is essential that profiteering and greed must be eliminated in the production of the sinews of war, and the supply and distribution of home requirements;

"To this end we urge that the machinery of production and the wealth of the nation be mobilized to serve the country's interests instead of those of individuals and corporations, so that there will be an equitable contribution on the part of capital comparable to that of the sacrifice of human life."

Armed Resistance In Belgian Town

By HOMER JENKS

LONDON, Sept. 23—(BUP)—The British press reported today that "armed resistance" to German authorities had broken out at the Belgian town of Tournai.

The Evening Standard reported that details leaking out of Berlin said there was an armed outbreak by Belgian oppositionists on Sept. 17, when two German policemen and a leader of the Belgian Rexists (Fascists) were shot and killed.

The reports indicated that the outbreak was on a more serious scale than previously reported.

The Germans arrested 25 citizens of the town as hostages to be shot unless the assassins are caught within 10 days.

Occupying Army Proves Expensive

VICHY, Sept. 23. — (AP) — The Petain government borrowed another 12,000,000,000 francs (nominally $276,000,000) from the Banque de France today to pay for upkeep of the German army of occupation, boosting the total obtained by money interest bearing loans for this purpose to 130,000,000,000 francs ($2,-900,000,000).

U.S. Defence Ships Tied By Strikers

Americans Hunt Seas For Raider

By JOHN A. REICHMANN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(BUP)—The U. S. navy scoured the Iceland sea lanes today for an Axis raider which presumably sank the government owned S.S. Pink Star — apparently the first challenge to President Roosevelt's "shoot on sight" orders.

The Pink Star incident was the third to occur in an area of less than 100 miles diameter southwest of Iceland.

The Pink Star was the former Danish vessel Lundby taken over by the United States and sailing for the United States Lines under Panamanian registry. She carried a crew of 34, none of which were Americans. Only meager details were available at the state department when the incident was announced last night.

The announcement revealed only that the Pink Star carried a "general cargo" and was sunk last Saturday 45 miles northwest of the point at which the S.S. Sessa was torpedoed and shelled on on Aug. 17 with the loss of all but three of her crew. It was also in that same general area where the S.S. Montana was sunk Sept. 11 just a few hours before President Roosevelt announced his "shoot on sight" policy and where the United States destroyer Greer was attacked by a submarine.

"DONE IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAWS OF WAR"

BERLIN, Sept. 23—(AP)—German spokesmen asserted today that whatever happened to the American-owned steamship Pink Star "it was done in accordance with the laws of war."

They said, however, that no German submarines or other overseas craft had specifically reported the sinking of the Panama-registered Pink Star, but added that messages had been received concerning sinkings out of a big convoy.

Europeans In Occupied Nations Become Bolder, Archduke Says

European people subjugated to Nazi rule are becoming bolder and open revolt to German tyranny may be expected to increase as the R. A. F. strikes harder at enemy-occupied country and Russia continues her brave stand against the Nazi hordes.

This was the opinion expressed in Edmonton Tuesday by His Imperial Highness Archduke Otto of Austria-Hungary as he brought a message of hope to all former residents of these countries.

He will address a meeting of these people Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Memorial hall.

This gathering will be preceded by a meeting of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs at 6:30 p.m. in the Macdonald hotel at which he will be guest speaker.

VISITS MANY POINTS

Archduke Otto began his tour in Toronto, the seat of the Free Austrian movement under the leadership of Hans Rott, and has visited many points in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Hans Rott was minister of labor in the last legal Austrian government under Schuschnigg before the German invasion. The Free Austrian movement under his leadership has spread over 30 countries.

Archduke Otto has made Toronto his headquarters in Canada since his arrival from Europe in July, 1940.

Gives War Views

ARCHDUKE OTTO

"Actually only about three to four per cent of the people in Austria are supporters of the Nazi regime," His Imperial Highness stated. Actually the majority of this small group is morally against the Nazi rule, but is supported only for material gain. There appears to be no moral attachment to the regime whatever, he stated.

The Archduke feels that the situation in Austria speaks for the other occupied countries as well. In Hungary, there appears to be a shade more freedom because the people are still enjoying a "Vichy-like" government, he said.

"Hitler has engineered the greatest exchange of population in history in order to prevent sabotage and rioting and thus keep the people of many countries befuddled and frightened into submission," he stated in answer to a query on Hitler's methods of suppression and tyrannical rule.

He stated that laborers from Austria are working in Belgium, Poland and France and the people from these countries are herded into Austrian factories. In this manner their environment prevents exchanges with local populations and Nazi rule is possible, he stated.

BLACK OUT BULGARIAN PORTS

Nazis Prepare Black Sea Thrust Against Russians

ANKARA, Sept. 23—(AP)—Sofia was under a partial curfew last night during a state of emergency, and information direct from the Bulgarian capital said Germany was increasing her troop concentrations prior to a Black Sea thrust against Russia.

Varna and Burgas, Bulgarian ports, were blacked out completely.

Newspapers played down the state of emergency, this responsible source in Sofia said. But he told of military trials, and expected a full curfew shortly in the capital.

Meanwhile the Bulgarian press and German-controlled newspapers in other parts of the Balkans were said to have begun a press campaign against the activities of George H. Earle, United States minister to Bulgaria.

ACCUSED OF "MEDDLING"

Earle was accused of meddling in Bulgaria's foreign relations with Germany, and the Sofia informant said this campaign began after Earle talked recently with Bulgarian editors to clarify what appeared to be a general misunderstanding about America in Bulgaria.

Nazi antipathy to Earle dates back to last winter when an incident occurred between the United States minister and a German officer in a night club in which Earle was said to have struck the officer. This gave rise to an official Nazi protest.

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 23 —(AP)— An informant telephoning from Sofia declared today the general populace of Bulgaria were opposed bitterly to siding against Russia and said pressure for Bulgaria's entry into the war had resulted in disturbances.

20,000 Pieces Of Aluminum Needed

Response to the appeal for aluminum utensils in sufficient quantities to fill the bin erected at the corner of First street and Jasper before the end of the week, is gradually gaining momentum.

Response to the appeal for aluminum utensils in sufficient quantities to fill the bin erected at the corner of First street and Jasper before the end of the week, is gradually gaining momentum.

The bin, constructed out of chicken wire over a framework of lumber, is approximately six feet high, six feet wide and about 20 feet long. It is conservatively estimated that about 20,000 pieces of aluminum will be needed to fill it.

The city-wide campaign in the form of a house-to-house canvass is sponsored by the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Red Cross but is being carried out by the respective troops of the Edmonton Boy Scouts. Elmer E. Roper is president of the Red Cross branch and T. W. Foster, assistant district commissioner of the Boy Scouts is in charge of the detailed arrangements in connection with the canvass.

Twelve troops, each under the leadership of a scoutmaster are working in their respective zones. The truckload of wares that arrived at the bin Monday morning was collected by Boy Scouts in five of the zones in conjunction with their summer campaign to collect bottles. Work in the other areas was curtailed due to the polio ban.

Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer, and Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secretary, conferred with Finance Minister Ilsley throughout the morning.

This afternoon and evening the minister will confer separately with delegations from Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The minister said progress was being made but it might be a matter of weeks before individual agreements were signed with the provinces.

Nazi Drive Bogged Russ General Says

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

WITH THE RED ARMY AT THE CENTRAL FRONT, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Maj.-Gen. Vassily Sokolovsky declared today the Nazi drive had bogged down into mud and trench warfare 10 to 100 times as destructive as Verdun of the last war.

Sokolovsky, a representative of the Soviet command on the Russian western front, told foreign correspondents German losses in the tremendous fight in the central sector had been twice as heavy as the Russians' in men and five times as heavy in material, planes and artillery.

Russian armies, he said, had shoved the Germans back six to 30 miles in the direction of Yartsevo, northeast of Smolensk, on a 60-mile front.

Appointment Soon

OTTAWA, Sept. 23.—(CP)—Appointment of Chief Justice W. F. A. Turgeon as Canadian minister to the Argentine, which has been rumored for several weeks, is expected to be announced in a few days.

NAZIS PUSHED BACK WEST OF YELYNA

Indescribable Carnage As Soviets Whip Huns In 'Battle Of The Bulge'

By WALLACE CARROLL

WITH THE RED ARMY, YELYNA, on the Eastern Front — (BUP) — The Red army, driving into the German lines at point after point in a counter-offensive which has now lasted for weeks, is pushing the armies of Adolf Hitler steadily back in the "Battle of the Bulge" now being fought to the west of this skeleton town.

Wallace Carroll, manager of the British United Press London Bureau and a veteran of the battle of Britain, has visited the Eastern front to report at first hand on the Red army in action. The first of his dispatches, filed from the front which the Russians have made their great counter-offensive, arrived in New York in sections yesterday, describing the red-hot Yelnya sector where the Russians now threaten Smolensk.

I reached Yelyna, now a town of ruined homes haunted by carrion crows, with a small group of British and American correspondents on conducted tour of the battlefield, in the Yelyna and Yartsevo sectors, from which the Russians seem converging northwestward and southwestward on the important communications centre of Smolensk.

Our tour took us over the first territory regained from Adolf Hitler on any front since he began his career of conquest and acquisition.

Lake Ilmen Area Scene Of Battles

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW, Sept. 23. — (BUP) — Three Russian armies, which the Germans recently claimed to have wiped out, were reported today to have inflicted 50,000 casualties on the Nazis in the Lake Ilmen area and to be pounding into the rear of the German besiegers of Leningrad.

A special dispatch to the Red Star, army organ, by Lt.-Gen. N. Vatutin, claimed that the three "lost" armies had "decimated" the 56th German army corps and the eighth tank division in beating back the Germans.

Regarding the German claims, Vatutin admitted the Russians had suffered 30,000 casualties, but said the three armies in question had been fully encircled. He reported that some troops had been cut off, but eventually broken through to rejoin the main forces.

In conjunction with the drive from the Lake Ilmen area, about 140 miles to the south, Russian forces at Leningrad were reported to have routed a German division and pushed the Nazis back six miles in furious fighting.

The Red army appeared to be counter-attacking along the entire front.

The counter-offensive of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's forces on the central front was reported surging ahead and inflicting heavy losses on the Germans and Russian attacks

THE signs point increasingly to a forthcoming German attempt to attack Russia from the rear, most probably across the Black Sea toward the Crimea, and possibly also across northern Turkey toward the Caucasus.

The activity of German planes in the eastern Black Sea, the aerial bombardment of the Crimea, location of the naval base of Sebastopol, and the reported massing of men and ships at Rumanian and Bulgarian ports all smack of preparedness for an assault.

Bulgaria is the keystone in the situation. Rumania is already fighting Russia and its port of Constanta is a German port. Bulgaria still is technically neutral, but is under the German thumb, so that the ports of Varna and Burgas

POWERS ACQUIRED ON THREE-FOLD FRONT

War Time Board Moving Toward Control Of Consumer

General License Order, Reduced Credit Buying Among Projects Pending

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Sept. 23.—On a three-fold front the wartime prices and trade board, with recently acquired powers to control all civilian economic activity, is moving steadily towards direct control of the consumer. While Dr. Kenneth Taylor, secretary of the board, in a speech in Montreal over the weekend, forecast rationing in some degree before long, the stage of rationing has not yet been reached.

But the machinery for establishing rationing of any foods or commodities in which wartime priorities make restriction of civilian consumption necessary has been studied thoroughly already, it was learned, and could probably be put into effect on short notice.

Meanwhile, three important developments are pending as a result of day and night meetings of the war prices board that have been virtually continuous since the board was transferred to the finance department three weeks ago and given enlarged powers.

1—The general licensing order, recently forecast officially by Dr. Taylor before the end of the year, is being drafted and the machinery of control being established. The licensing chief will be C. H. Morphy, a former excise officer of the national revenue branch, and a deputy licensing administrator is expected to be named. The licensing branch will be the enforcement branch, whether it is a matter of controlling the price and supply of a commodity on a national scale or just a question of cracking down on some small town chiseler who marks up the price of a scarce item.

2—Possibly the next major move of the board will be curtailment of credit buying, and an order to this effect may be expected any time. The field will probably be divided into categories, with the toughest restrictions on articles that mostly drain off essential war production resources, such as automobiles. The system will be to order all instalment down payment, perhaps 40 to 50 per cent in the case of cars with no exceptions, and a decrease in the instalment terms, probably with more than a year for cars which can now be bought on substantially longer terms. But no curb is likely on instalment buying of houses. As other category may be established for an intermediate group of articles such as furniture, which people need but for which excessive spending should be discouraged.

3—At the same time, a number of new administrators will be appointed shortly to permit closer control of selected commodities. The new controllers will supervise foods such as bread and meats, it is indicated, and other articles. The main purpose in appointing an administrator under the board is to provide an office where the technical factors affecting price and supply can be analyzed as a guide to control action.

"Lost" Russian Armies Batter German Forces

around Odessa were said to have littered the city approaches with "thousands of enemy dead and wrecked armored cars and guns."

ATTEMPT AT RESCUE

(Authoritative British sources reported that Timoshenko, appeared to be carrying out a successful counter-attack southeast of Smolensk in an attempt to rescue the great Russian forces trapped in the Kiev-Dnieprva pocket.)

Russian forces, apparently seeking to relieve Leningrad by smashing into the city's besiegers from the rear, were reported in a dispatch from the front to have killed 15,000 Germans in heavy fighting near Staraya Russa, in the Lake Ilmen area, 140 miles to the south.

Other Russian forces in the Leningrad area were said to have recovered the third German division, which reportedly fled in disorderly retreat leaving 700 dead, after a violent counter - attack. Seven guns of six miles was claimed.

MILITARY EXPERTS MORE OPTIMISTIC

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(CP)—Successful Russian counter-attacks around Gomel, 140 miles southeast of Gomel, were reported here today, with authoritative British military quarters inclining towards more optimistic view of the Soviet situation in many areas of German penetration.

The Glukhov counter - blows were described here as separate from Marshal Timoshenko's attacks in the Smolensk sector, which is 220 miles northwest.

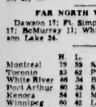

British military men also described the situation in the northern sectors and around Leningrad as not unfavorable. While warning against overconfidence in Russian strength, these quarters cited reports of heavy German losses, especially among officers, and the onset of wet, cold autumn weather, which they said would handicap battle movements particularly in forest areas.

On the Karelian isthmus, it was said, the Russians appear to be successfully stemming the Finnish approximately the line of the pre-1940 frontier.

From the Odessa region, London heard that Axis attacks were repulsed with severe Rumanian losses.

It has been estimated that consumption of petroleum products in the United States during 1940 amounted to 425 gallons per capita.

Labor Congress Debates Policy On War Issues

CALGARY, Sept. 23.—(CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, failing to get immediate approval of its lengthy substitute resolution dealing with the Defence of Canada Regulations, turned today to proposals urging conscription of wealth to the same extent as man-power.

Refusal of several delegates to accept the rejections by the resolutions committee of 25 resolutions dealing with the Defence of Canada Regulations high-spotted yesterday's first business session. The committee, in a substitute resolution, reiterated its 1940 congress stand and recommended further improvements on the Defence of Canada Regulations.

VOTE DEFERRED

Chief opposition came when delegates declared they should not be asked to approve a motion until the substitute resolution was fully digested by all who have a voice at the 57th annual convention. The substitution was pushed temporarily to the committee for printing and distribution among delegates. It will be voted on later, possibly this afternoon.

The resolutions committee will report its stand on the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council conscription issue which states:

"Whereas, organized labor throughout the Dominion has pledged itself as willing to submit to any sacrifice that Canada's war effort may be enobled. The licensing branch will be the enforcement branch, whether it is a matter of controlling the price and supply of a commodity on a national scale or just a question of cracking down on some small town chiseler who marks up the price of a scarce item.

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH

"That this convention urge upon the Dominion government the necessity of intensifying all its war efforts in the achievement of final victory to immediately, without fear or favor, apply the power they possess, in order to mobilize wealth and to take control of the entire war industry to the same extent as man-power will be conscripted."

A Toronto resolution urging the congress to oppose conscription without conscription also of complete wealth and industry.

Support Allied Cause Needed Archduke Says

creasing open revolt breaking out in some of the countries, especially France, is the fact that the oppressed peoples are beginning to muster more and more courage in the Britain's gaining strength in the air, he said. When Britain gains undisputed superiority in the air, the subjugated countries will react more openly, he believes.

In regard to the situation in Russia, Archduke stated that even if Russia should fall the Russian peasant is so highly patriotic that a puppet government will not be tolerated for any length of time.

He further explained that if Hitler conquers Russia, the problem of policing and occupying this vast territory, added to his present conquered land, will be cause of his own downfall.

Hitler has 67,000,000 people with which to police the whole continent. His Gestapo, censors and spies are now so thinned out that there are zones, even in Austria, in which Hitler authority does not exist, he stated.

ARE SYMPATHETIC

With reference to Italy's part in the Axis alliance, the Archduke is quite convinced that generally speaking the Italian troops are sympathetic towards the allies. They feel that only an ally victory will give them the freedom they would like. They hate Mussolini as much as we do, he said.

Today a continental invasion would not be advisable," he stated. "With Britain gradually increasing continental air raids and the oppressed people becoming bolder it would be wiser to wait."

"Morale of the German people is decaying rapidly due to British air attacks bombing raids. The Germans can't stand bombardment," he said. "Their morale must be destroyed first and it's going fast."

Archduke Otto moved to Belgium in 1930. On the first day of the 21st year, he was told, the Archduke's castle was bombed, and he and his family fled to France.

He remained there until after the armistice, and escaped over the Spanish border after he suspected being on Hitler's order list for arrest.

He came to America in July, 1940 and has since been promoting the Free Austrian movement by visiting areas predominately settled by former Austrians and Hungarians.

He is speaking tonight at 8:15 upon Lt. Gov. Bowen, Premier Aberhart and Archbishop J. H. MacDonald of the Roman Catholic diocese. He will address two meetings Tuesday evening.

The 28-year-old Archduke will leave for Calgary Wednesday accompanying him are his secretary, Count Henri Degenfeld, and Professor Gassner, formerly with universities in Vienna and Rome.

Massachusetts' population rose from 4,249,614 in 1930 to 4,312,332 in 1940.

Today's War Moves

would be available, even if Bulgaria declines to go to war against Russia.

The Bulgarians have a Slavic affinity with Russia which makes the bulk of the population averse to fighting her. It might take considerable German pressure to add the Bulgarian army to the forces aligned against the Soviet Union.

However, Bulgaria is helpless. The Germans could occupy the country as easily as they did the other Balkan states. Moreover, Bulgaria long has been dependent on Germany for nearly 90 per cent of her trade, meaning her national existence.

Since the enforced occupation of Bulgaria would require a lot of troops which are needed against Russia, and since unwilling soldiers do not make good fighters, it is possible that the Germans might suffer the Bulgarian army against Turkey.

The Bulgarians would not be so reluctant to fight the Turks. Their prominent enemy, presumably, would be the restoration of their coast on the Aegean Sea.

The prime objective of a German-Bulgarian drive against Turkey would be to overrun European Turkey and seize the Straits, opening the way for the Axis from the Aegean to the Black Sea. The recent effort to persuade Turkey to allow passage of 13 Italian warships "lent" to Bulgaria indicates the trend of Axis aims.

MAY NOT HAVE TO FIGHT

An expedition eastward across Turkey proper then would be in order. Turkey, however, might be attained without actual war, since it is not certain that Turkey would fight a German invasion and threat of immediate invasion might cause her to capitulate. Turkey, it must be remembered, like Bulgaria, is dependent on Germany for the bulk of her trade—about 60 per cent. There is considerable pro-German sentiment in the Turkish army, which is partly German-trained and equipped. German agents have been busy in Turkey, creating pro-Fascist sentiment.

It puts Turkey's rulers in a difficult situation. To the north is Germany and Bulgaria. On the west is Italy. But if she submits to the Axis, she is ringed by land and sea by a blockade held south by Britain, which controls Iran, Iraq and Syria.

Either way, Turkey might become a battleground. She has under arms about 500,000 men, a fair air force and efficient land equipment. The army probably could be raised to 750,000 or more in event of war. Hence, Turkey ought to be able to put up a good fight against any forces the British and Russians could spare.

The combined force of Germany, Bulgaria and Italy, military and naval, would be a different proposition. Bulgaria has an army of about 500,000, probably close to full mobilization. Its equipment is poor and air force negligible, but Germany could remedy this difficulty

Interpreting War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH the fall of Kiev, now announced by Moscow, German forces encircling the lost city are in a position to strike menacing blows against the Russians not only southeastward toward the Donetz basin but northeastward toward Moscow.

Their advance across the river defenses from Kremenchug to Bryansk, has merged the central and south-central fighting fronts into one vast battle. It could as gravely threaten the southwest as it does Kharkov on the Donets or even Rostov on the Don.

Berlin and Moscow versions of the fighting east of Kiev do little to indicate the exact situation of Red armies there, which are estimated to number close to 900,000 men. Berlin put ones 30 Red divisions encircled and in process of "annihilation." Moscow says they are fighting their way through a gap in the German lines to reach Kharkov for a new stand.

There is great danger that contact between Russian armies in the Smolensk sector and those which may "escape southward toward Kharkov from the Kiev pocket would be broken, paralyzing the Russian retreat all the way from Smolensk southward to the Sea of Azov. That would mean retirement on a front of 1,000 miles, huge Russian losses in men and battle equipment in such a vast withdrawal, hard-pressed by the Germans, would probably be enormous.

It remains to be seen, however, whether the Germans themselves can muster sufficient forces to undertake so huge a double attack simultaneously.

If the Russians retired from the Smolensk salient they could shorten their line, and release forces in the centre to bolster the southern flank. It appears that the only course left for the Russians now is to conduct purely defensive warfare on the whole front to await winter.

Teacher Shortage Is Now Reported

Pending receipt of definite information from several school divisions superintendents, department of education officials on Tuesday estimated there might be a shortage of 110 teachers for the autumn term which opened Monday. The situation will be studied by the department, with a view to taking such action as is necessary to obtain the teachers.

From reports so far received the shortage exists almost entirely in the northern sections of the province. Asked for a reason, officials said it was due, probably, to many teachers obtaining posts nearer urban centres.

Windsors Will Go Direct To Ranch

NASSAU, Bahamas, Sept. 23.—(CP)—The Duke of Windsor Monday told newspapermen he plans to go directly from Washington Sept. 26 to Alberta on his fortnight coming visit with the Duchess of Windsor to his ranch at High River, Alta.

During the trip, he said, he will settle business problems of his ranch, which he has not visited for 14 years. He will stay at the ranch from 10 to 14 days.

He plans to do some fishing and riding after spending many years out of the saddle.

Hull Favors Change Of Neutrality Act

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(AP)—State Secretary Hull told his press conference today that he had tried for some time to indicate that he believes the United States neutrality act should be changed. Declining to speak whether or when the measure would be repealed or revised, Hull reminded reporters he and President Roosevelt had said at the time the law was enacted that it would be as likely to get the country into the war as to keep it out.

Special Court Metes Out Four Death Sentences

BERLIN, Sept. 23—(AP)—DNB. Nazi news and propaganda agency, said today in a dispatch from Paris that a special court dealing with the Communist and anarchist cases yesterday pronounced four death sentences and sentenced 12 persons to penitentiary terms ranging from five years to life. Four women were among the persons sentenced, it said, but it was not disclosed whether any of them were among those drawing the death penalty.

Thailand Fears Real War Near

BANGKOK, Thailand, Sept. 23—(AP)—The Thai radio declared today the nation was but a single step short of being involved in real war, as the news of forthcoming Japanese army manoeuvres on the plains of Cambodia, adjoining the Thailand frontier, was regarded as ominous by the Thai press. Under new defence regulations Thailand closed to foreigners three more districts in her frontier provinces.

Japs Moving Into Rear Of Russians

SHANGHAI, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Japan is rushing masses of additional troops to Manchukuo as a result of mounting confidence in Tokyo over German victories against the Red army, foreign military observers reported today.

The Japanese troop movements started during the last week just as Germany was making considerable headway, leading some quarters to believe the time may be ripening for a Japanese thrust against Siberia.

Reports of new border clashes between the Japanese and Russians persisted here, but a Japanese army spokesman said he hadn't heard about them. However, he added ominously:

"Regarding the future, I cannot make predictions."

It is known that the Japanese regard the Hailar and Manchuli districts as potential trouble spots, the latter especially, here are large forces are concentrated within pistol shot of each other on both sides of the boundary.

The movement of the additional troops into Manchukuo was regarded here as indicating a change in Japanese plans since only a month ago Japanese military authorities announced reinforcement of that territory had been completed.

Eden Talks With Envoy To Turkey

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden conferred with the Turkish ambassador today. Presumably he discussed British-Turkish relations in the light of continued reports of German pressure for military and trade concessions from Turkey.

It was believed probable the two also discussed Turkey's position in view of indications seen in London that Bulgaria soon may become an outright belligerent on the Axis side.

As viewed from London, Bulgaria's entrance into the war seems almost certain.

Political leaders in Britain show increased alarm over effects the German advance in the Ukraine might have on Turkey's determination to withstand Nazi demands.

Contributions To Mission Funds Of Church Increase

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 23.—(CP)—Contributions of $217,107.57 last year to the mission funds of the Church of England in Canada were "the best in 10 years," it was reported Monday at the opening session of the board of management of the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada.

The meeting opened a one-week convention of the executive council and departments of the church. Archbishop of the board said greatly increased interest in missionary work was displayed by the missionary spirit and referred particularly to the work of the Bishop of Calgary.

Nazis Now Admit Counter-Thrusts

BERLIN, Sept. 23—(AP)—Simultaneous Russian counter-offensives in the north, central and southern sectors were acknowledged in German war dispatches today, but it was declared that in all three were claimed to have been repulsed, with 380,000 prisoners taken in the so-called encirclement area involved out by the Germans east of Kiev.

These captures, claimed by the High Command, overshadowed the Soviet counter-thrusts as far as Germany was concerned. In the continuing battle of the Canadian Engineers, he joined the Province as a reporter.

1942 to finance the operations of the Exhibition association during the war. This would include salaries of the staff.

LEASE NOT COMPLETED

Mr. Garside reported also that the formal lease between the city and the Dominion government had not yet been completed, but he expected that a few final details would be ironed out within the next few days. He said there was no direct friction between the dominion government and the fair board.

Council last June asked city commissioners to report back on the allocation of the $8,500 annual compensation to be paid by the Dominion government, and Monday the commissioners said they commenced their enquiries shortly after this resolution had been passed.

CAN HOLD SHOWS

It had been anticipated that on these grounds were transferred that no further exhibitions could be held there for the war's duration. Later the Dominion government agreed it would do without the livestock barns west of the arena, and these were turned back to the association. This will enable the holding of the fall sheep and swine show and annual sale.

Although no definite commitments have been made, it is known that Mr. Abbott is working on plans for the holding of a provincial exhibition in 1942, and it is probable that the annual summer fair race meeting will be held here also. It is understood there is some hope that use of the race track for fair week will be granted by the military authorities.

The association will continue its spring livestock show, and also authorized at its last meeting the holding of the annual poultry show.

Winnipeg Seeks 1942 Convention

CALGARY, Sept. 23—(CP)—Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council went all out last night in its campaign for the 1942 Congress convention. Quebec also seeks the meetings.

R. G. Anderson, secretary of the Winnipeg organization, had a large banner, about 15 feet by three, placed atop the entrance to the main convention hall last night which declared:

"Vote for Winnipeg, the convention city of 1942."

On each corner at the bottom of the sign were "V" for victory signs.

Mr. Anderson, admitting it is the council's intention to beat out Quebec, said "We feel that by the last 20 years Winnipeg, as a central city of the Dominion and a progressive city as far as organized labor is concerned, is entitled to the convention." Quebec will be host to the congress convention in 1918, however.

Germans Claim 50 Russ Divisions Smashed In Drive

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Germans claimed today they had smashed 50 Soviet divisions (approximately 750,000 men) east of Kiev in a sweeping encirclement battle which still was continuing as allegedly trapped Russian troops attempted to fight their way out.

The high command asserted approximately 380,000 prisoners already had been taken and that huge booty, including more than 570 tanks and 2,100 guns, had been captured or destroyed.

Naval Casualties

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(CP)—The Admiralty announced Monday night that five officers and 105 ratings were missing and presumed killed in the loss of the 1,690-ton destroyer Juno last May 22-23 off Crete. The Juno was sunk by Nazi bombers.

Dominion Said Indifferent To Workers' Wish

CALGARY, Sept. 23.—(CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress unanimously approved a resolution at their convention here today charging the Dominion government had been indifferent to workers and that the government refused to take the working people into their confidence.

The resolution, from the International Association of Machinists, Toronto Lodge 717, received approval after a lengthy debate. It states:

"Be it resolved, that this convention go on record to condemn the government of this Canada of ours for their apparent indifference to the wishes and desires of the workers and their refusal to take the working people of Canada into their confidence must be considered an expression of lack of confidence in the workers."

Ernest Inglis of London, Ont., international organizer for the electrical workers in Canada, charged that the Dominion government though its Department of Labor is interested officially in splitting the international movement. . ."

During debate on a resolution condemning the government for its "apparent disregard of the wishes and desires of the workers and their refusal to take the working people of Canada into their confidence must be an expression of lack of confidence in the workers," Mr. Inglis said:

"I wish chief of the labor department's conciliation service (M. S. Campbell, chief conciliator officer) is the man designated as the spearhead to give aid and comfort and assistance to enemies of the international labor movement.

"When we offered co-operation we thought it was accepted but all we received was hypocritical treatment.

"I don't know of anything of more hypocritical expressions than orders-in-council P.C. 7440 and P.C. 2685," he said.

Boulogne Docks Bombed By R.A.F.

LONDON, Sept. 23 — (CP) — Royal Air Force bombers roared through unfavorable weather last night to drop explosives on the docks at Boulogne on the German-occupied French coast, the Air Ministry said today. Only a small force engaged in the bombing and has returned to their bases.

Yesterday, a Coastal Command aircraft attacked and struck a direct hit on a German supply ship off the coast of Norway.

The Air Ministry, in its communique today, announced one of one bomber reported missing from operations last Saturday night had been rescued. No details were given.

50 Are Executed As "Originators" Bomb Attack

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Fifty Jews and Communists have been executed in Zagreb charged with being the "intellectual origin" of a bomb attack in the Croatian capital, the German radio reported from Berlin today.

The prisoners were sentenced to death by a court martial in Zagreb Sept. 19, the radio reported, quoting an announcement by the ministry of interior affairs of Croatia. The bomb attack was said to have been against the Zagreb telephone exchange in which more than 13 German soldiers were wounded.

Nazis Operate Like A Gang In Dealings With Business

Hitler Economy Muscles In Upon American Firms' Holdings Within Borders

This is the ninth of 12 installments of "You Can't Do Business With Hitler," the best-selling book which has aroused widespread comment throughout North America.

By DOUGLAS MILLER
(Former Commercial Attache in the U. S. Embassy in Berlin)

There is no doubt, if Germany wins the war, she will attempt more or less to standardize industry for all Europe and can hold out to individual firms the hope that their design might become the standard one for an entire continent or even for a Nazified world.

Hitler can use prospects such as these as bait to tempt foreign business men to co-operate with him.

Probably more important than such promises and inducements, though, are the threats that the Nazis can use and the control which they now exercise over the property of unfortunate firms in their territory.

Before the war started, most of our smaller American companies had fled from Germany, abandoning such property as they had; but larger firms with more extensive investments were hanging on desperately and sending in good money after bad, because they scarcely could afford to give up their large holdings.

"YOU CAN'T DO BUSINESS WITH HITLER"

Now the property of these firms and many other firms in surrounding European countries is affected. Suppose Great Britain falls and other parts of the British empire; this would increase the pressure which the Nazis could put upon American firms with property in such areas.

Look down the list of our large industrial firms as quoted on the New York Stock Exchange. You will find almost every one has property abroad, if not in plant, then in distribution organization, patents, or stocks of goods.

All this property is in danger of being used by Hitler as a hostage for the good behavior of the parent companies in the United States.

Pressure

Some people express fear the Nazis may confiscate such American properties.

This is unlikely. They know a trick ten times as effective.

They will allow the American holders to maintain their title to property in lands under Nazi control, but will subject them to threats of punishment and confiscation in the one hand, and promises and inducements for good behavior on the other.

In this way, Hitler can be assured of plenty of pulls to apply pressure right inside the United States.

PATRIOTIC

Of course, if he puts on the pressure too strongly, he will defeat his purpose. American companies are patriotic. They would not betray the interest of the United States under pressure, if the issue were clearly presented to them in that light—but it would not be.

They would be asked to make only small concessions of policy at the beginning, but one concession, if made, would inevitably lead to another.

The great trouble in dealing with the Nazis is the fact that we never know their real word. No matter how much you have agreed to today, they will demand more tomorrow. The experience of the Vichy government is an excellent illustration of this point.

POLICY

In October, 1931, nearly one and a half years before the Nazis came to power, Hermann Goering spent an afternoon discussing economic policies with a representative of the American embassy.

He gave me a warning to American business firms that they had better leave Germany.

He explained the Nazis regarded the economic life of the country as a living organism, and that the presence of foreign firms inside their territory was like that of destructive bacteria in the human body. He said in due time such firms would be forced to close their business and return home.

Some years later, Walther Funk, then president of the Reichsbank and minister of economics, stated officially that in world trade after the war no private international trade would be permitted, that all trade would be between governments, as private transactions only lead to international anarchy.

"Protection"

Let me illustrate the difficulties of doing business with Germny by relating the experience of an American firm making soft drinks. This firm, surprisingly enough, had a satisfactory business in Germany, the land of beer, for a number of years.

After Hitler came into power, the company began to run into difficulties. German patriots instilled that their product was injurious to health. The police reported that some of their buildings must be torn down, because they did not measure up to the building code.

After several experiences of this kind, the company approached me and said: "We understand that there is a way of arranging matters with the National Socialist party headquarters to keep foreign firms out of trouble. Perhaps you could help make an arrangement for us."

HELP

I notified the party headquarters, and in a few days a young man about 30 in the party uniform came to my office. He explained he was the propaganda leader in the province of Saxony and nothing would please him better than to assist the American company in their difficulty.

Said he: "I am already helping 17 companies and would be glad to assist another, particularly since it is American."

"Just how is that arranged?" said I.

"The company should appoint me as a member of their board of directors in Germany." He added this would cost $800 a month.

I wondered if he was doing equally well with the other 17. The company rejected this proposal and their troubles miraculously stopped for a while.

Price Raised

But this type of arrangement is not satisfactory in the long run. It is an old experience that blackmailers always raise their price.

After about two years, another Nazi official, superior to the friendly young man just described, and who apparently had not received a proper cut of the $800 a month, made a new ruling—namely, that the product was Jewish and would pollute any pure Aryans that might happen to drink it.

The company came to me a second time. I advised that we consult Dr. Robert Ley, head of the German labor front, who suggested a Nazi delegation visit the United States at the firm's expense, to investigate the product. This was done, and an official report received the drink could be enjoyed by the purest Aryans without racial contamination.

MISTAKE

Unfortunately, we had made the mistake of going right over the head of the official who had made the ruling in the first place.

Offended, he shortly came out with a ruling that the beverage was not Jewish, but, being foreign, could not be consumed by any good Nazis.

The company came back to me a third time and I gave them advice which usually has to be given to any foreign firm that works long enough in totalitarian territory. I suggested courses of action which

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For the purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Meyrick Dyer Stores or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally by a small dose to take away pain, quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the result your druggist will gladly return your money and the scene of the first defeats suffered by Germany in this war.

Nazis Pushed Back In Great "Bulge" Battle

I have seen a village in which there remained one habitation—a bird house. I have seen the Red army at work, calmly and efficiently. The officers and men say they are receiving abundant new supplies of tanks, artillery and planes.

From my observation, Russia's supply organization by some miracle of transport seems able to keep its armies in these areas well supplied over roads which resemble prairie tracks of the covered wagon days in North America.

The fall rains are turning some parts of the roads into quagmires now but the heavy army trucks and tractor vehicles seem to get through without much difficulty.

The ruin in some areas is terrible but everywhere behind the front here except in the actual devastated region around Velyna, we have found peasants working in the fields and women and children standing in the doorways of their thatched log cabins as if they had no fear of the Germans. Everywhere the troops appeared well fed, well equipped and in excellent spirits.

CAPABLE OFFICERS

Officers whom we have met range from generals to lieutenants. They are young, intelligent, and looked as capable as the officers of any army.

The German artillery in this area seems non-existent. We heard the Soviet batteries firing down a heavy barrage and listened to the swish of Russian shells over us but we waited in vain for the German guns to reply.

Although the German air force raided a town where we spent one night, and blew in the windows of our bedrooms, we have seen only a few German planes and Red fighter and bomber planes have seemed constantly in action.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's central army has used tanks as well as artillery and the bayonet to retake Yelyna and check a German thrust toward Moscow.

The Germans, breaking through a narrow gap in the Russian lines, took Yelyna late in July and pushed eastward six to 10 miles beyond the town. Pouring in tanks, infantry and artillery they created a big bulge like the one which proved fatal to France after the break-through at Sedan. From this bulge they apparently hoped to strike north to the Moscow-Smolensk highway and threaten Moscow.

TURNED INTO GREAT SACK

Marshal Timoshenko, however, did what Gen. Maxime Weygand failed to do in France and turned the German bulge into a great sack in which the German army was battered and squeezed as it never had been in this war.

One of the fiercest of these local attacks was made at the village of Ushakovo, six miles north of Yelyna.

A Russian commissar who took part in the battle plainly was over the battlefield, warning us to keep in a straight file behind him a firm in their situation could take:

1. They could approach the official in question and find out how much it would cost to have him change his ruling. It might amount to their profits for several years; but it would be worth finding out, at any rate.

2. They could close their German business and go back to the United States. That was the course which I thought best under the circumstances.

A Nazi firm in similar circumstances might consider having the official assassinated.

Such are the usual alternatives which present themselves to business men who try to operate in a totalitarian state.

in order to avoid any German mines remaining.

We found the Russian trenches almost untouched by field gun and mortar fire but the German trenches had been smashed every few yards by Russian shelling.

There was only one habitation left in the village—a wooden bird house which peasants had put in a maple tree and which somehow escaped the bombardment.

A mile nearer Yelyna, a rubble heap which had been the village of Ushovo, we saw what had been the German artillery command post for the region.

By Sept. 4 the gap was less than five miles wide. Across this narrow space the Red artillery laid a curtain of fire, pounding away day and night while infantry and tanks kept up pressure on both sides.

INDESCRIBABLE CARNAGE

Eight German divisions, some already badly mauled east of Yelyna, had to pass by this "meat grinder" whose division of pinched-in storm troops, the 10th Tank division, the 10th Motorized division, the 15th, 178th, 268th and 292nd German Infantry divisions and the Austrian 137th Infantry division.

Russian officers said the carnage was indescribable as the Germans struggled through the curtain of fire with Russian tanks and infantry harassing their flanks.

We visited a division which boasts that it has never retreated since it entered the line July 10.

Its commander, a big, red cheeked man, said, laughing:

"We learned from German prisoners that they call us the wild division. But we are not so wild; in fact, we are quite civilized.

"One characteristic of this division is that it does most of its fighting by night. The Germans are very bad at night fighting. They actually are frightened of night fighting, especially in the woods. Because of this they do a lot of firing at night, apparently just to make a noise."

Edmonton Man Loses Life In Sessa Sinking

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—(CP)—Indication that Able Seaman W. Dwyer of Edmonton had died after the steamship Sessa was torpedoed and shelled off Iceland, Aug. 17 was given in an account of the sinking by the stricken vessel's first mate, made public here Monday night by the United States department of state.

The sinking of the Sessa, American-owned but sailing under Panamanian registry, was announced Sept. 9. The 21-year-old Dwyer was listed as one of the crew members missing and while the statement of First Mate Bjerregard did not mention him by name, only one Canadian was known to be aboard the vessel.

After describing the sinking and his flight in the sea to reach the raft, Bjerregard said:

"On the 10th day died a Portuguese and the Canadian. In this day we saw an airplane which I believe flew from 100 meters from us and which I believe must have seen us. This plane, which was flying north, disappeared without a sign of recognition.

"Water ran out about 40 hours before we were saved. Food held out to that time.

"On the 19th day about noon the U.S.S. Lansdale picked us up and brought us to Reykjavik.

ATTACKED AT NIGHT

"With regard to the sinking, at the time of the occurrence it was fairly dark—deep twilight but not faint darkness. Weather was clear and smooth. I think that the outline of the ship could have been seen at 500 yards. The vessel was running with dimmed navigation lights and was otherwise blacked out. I think these lights might have been seen at two miles. I do not believe the submarine could have made out the ship's markings. I did not see the sub nor perceive the flash of gunfire.

"I do not believe there can have been any other survivors of the attack. When dug out, Aug. 18, there was nothing to be seen."

ABLE SEAMAN DWYER WENT TO SEA AS BOY

Able Seaman William Joseph Dwyer, 21, was the son of Mrs. N. Dwyer, 9637 106 street. He had been away from home since 1936 when, at the age of 16, he left to go to sea. Since that time he has been serving mostly on British merchant vessels. He was in Spain during the Spanish war.

In a line received by his mother this summer, written after he had landed at Montreal and gone to New York, he spoke of trying to join the Canadian navy but his mother did not know he had shipped aboard an American ship. He signed on August 10 in New York.

He was born in Tipperary, Ireland, April 25, 1920, and came to Alberta with his parents at the age of nine. They farmed at Darwell, 40 miles west of Edmonton, and he went to school there.

He leaves his mother, a brother, Michael, in the R.C.A.F. at Macleod, another brother, Joseph, and a sister, Marie, in Edmonton.

Alberta Horses Held At Border

VICTORIA, Sept. 23.—(CP)—Acting on instructions from the provincial department of agriculture, the provincial police stopped a consignment of 93 Alberta horses at the border today; demanding that they be inoculated and quarantined. Pending regulations passed by the province a year ago make quarantine obligatory, to guard against any spread of sleeping sickness among horses, Hon. K. C. MacDonald, agriculture minister, explained. So far British Columbia is free from the disease.

Soldiers Given Head Start In Election Vote

VICTORIA, Sept. 23—(CP)—British Columbia's 30,000 sailors, soldiers and airmen on wartime service outside the province, in Canada, Newfoundland and overseas, will be the first to cast their ballots in the forthcoming provincial general election.

Balloting in British Columbia takes place Oct. 21, but the servicemen will cast their ballots several days before those in the United Kingdom, Oct. 9-11 and those in other parts of the Dominion, Oct. 14-16.

The result of the extra-provincial military vote will not be known until several days after Oct. 21 and it is possible it may alter party standings in tightly-contested constituencies. Soldiers, sailors and airmen in British Columbia will vote along with the civilian population.

PRE-REGISTRATION

Machinery for taking the service vote was set up at the last legislature in the form of the British Columbia Active Service Voting Regulations. The regulations provide that all servicemen who vote must be British subjects who resided in the province at least six months before joining up. They must have been enrolled as voters prior to enlistment.

All minors in the service who have residential or naturalization qualifications will be entitled to cast their ballots despite their age. The vote of the servicemen will be allocated to the district in which they lived for the last month before joining the colors.

Men in the forces will be allowed to attend political meetings—if the meetings do not interfere with their duties, but they cannot take part in the proceedings. If, however, they are candidates for election, they will be granted leave of absence without pay and may take part in the campaign.

OVERSEAS VOTING

Voting in Great Britain and Northern Ireland will be under the direction of Geoffrey Ward, president of the Canadian Board of Trade at London. Special deputy returning officers will be sent to various parts of the United Kingdom where British Columbia servicemen are stationed.

Each serviceman eligible to vote will be given a ballot and a small envelope. After marking the ballot, he will hand it—in the envelope—to the special deputy returning officer who will place it in another envelope, this inscribed with the voter's name and address. These will be placed in the ballot box which will be opened at the end of each day's polling and the contents sent to the supervising special deputy returning officer for that area.

With completion of voting, sorting of envelopes to their proper electoral districts will commence. All boxes will then be locked and sealed until Oct. 21, when the ballots will be counted.

Each serviceman or will be wired or cabled to the deputy provincial secretary at Victoria and the actual document will arrive later. If documents from overseas are lost through war action, the cabled report of the overseas vote will be accepted as final.

Dominion's Labor Leaders Praised

CALGARY, Sept. 23.—(CP)—Commissioner J. A. Tweddle of Calgary said here Monday night that the best and quickest way to overcome the shortage of skilled workmen "is to make the journeyman's position better so as to encourage youth to follow."

Mr. Tweddle, addressing the annual banquet at the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada 57th convention, said that the apprentice for his own good should start at a much lower rate of pay than is being done today.

"I think," he said, "we would make better apprentices to any trade by giving them, also their parents to understand that there should be a little sacrifice to get their boys a real training and I do not mean by the short'road of youth training schools.

In welcoming delegates to the convention, Mr. Tweddle urged that a close understanding be received at between employer and employees as the first consideration in the war work. "Nothing should come between either party to retard the production of fighting equipment for our war effort," said.

He praised Canada's labor leaders and stated that "Our record in Canada for man-hours lost through strikes is most encouraging."

Hon. J. C. Bowen, lieutenant-governor for Alberta, extended a welcome to United States and British fraternal delegates to the convention.

He left at midnight for Edmonton.

The Farmer Gets A Share

The officials of the Bureau of Statistics have analyzed the increase that has taken place in the cost of living since the war began, and given a dollars and cents statement of where the extra money goes.

Family necessities which cost $100 two years ago now cost $112.80. Food prices absorb $6.90 of the increase, more than half. Clothing, fuel, lighting, rent, home furnishings and miscellaneous items take the balance. These have all gone up, in varying amounts; and price declines are noted for potatoes, cocoa, canned peaches and corn flakes.

Dry groceries have gone up 35 per cent, dairy products 24.5 per cent, eggs 24.7 per cent, meat and fish 26.9 per cent, fruits 18.8 per cent and cereals 11.7 per cent. Aside from dry groceries, which are processed foods, the heavy increases have related to farm products which come directly or unchanged from producer to consumer.

The farmer thus gets a good share of the extra money the consumer has to pay. As prices of some of these products were below cost when the war started, it is just, as well as sound economy, that these have been affected substantially by the general rise.

Helping Hitler

Marshal Petain went on the air to plead with the people of France to resign themselves to servitude and cease making trouble for the bullies who have been set to keep them in subjection. The gauleiters promptly backed up his plea with threats that guns, troops and armored cars will be used to suppress disorder.

That the plea and the threats were pre-arranged is obvious. Thus the man who little more than a year ago was the trusted leader of the allied forces against the Nazi onslaught is now conspiring with France's enemy to stamp the spirit of freedom out of French hearts.

Petain's plea is that his new associates will murder more innocent people if more Nazi soldiers are shot, without taking the trouble to find out whether the unfortunate "hostages" know anything about the shootings. Frenchmen who remember the slaughter of women, children and men perpetrated by Nazi airmen on the highways of northern France a year ago last May can hardly need to be thus told what manner of men these are with whom Petain is now consorting.

Frenchmen might at least expect that the Marshal would confine himself to giving them counsels of prudence, and not go the length of joining their persecutors in the attempt to drug them into passive acceptance of gangster rule.

War Time Taxes

The new tax bill adopted by Congress and signed by President Roosevelt provides for raising $3,553,400,000 by new and increased taxes. This is the largest sum ever collected from the taxpayers of the republic by a single measure. It is nearly $750,000,000 more than the total amount the Dominion Government is spending this year, $2,850,000,000.

Altogether the people of the United States are required to pay more than $13,000,000,000 in taxes during the coming year. And this colossal sum will not cover much more than half the amount to be spent on defence and the lease-lend program. Still another tax bill may be brought in to raise enough to meet two-thirds of this armament outlay by taxation.

These figures look mountainous beside those with which Canadians are familiar, and which they find involves taxation such as they have never borne before. But the spread in populations is even wider. There are about thirteen times as many pockets from which to take tax-money in the United States as in Canada; but the amount to be collected there under present measures, including the new one, is only five times as large. And Canada is paying 75 per cent of its expenditures out of taxmoney.

If our neighbors were as heavily taxed, they would pay in the coming year about $37,000,000,000.

Is Kiev Worth The Price?

The loss of Kiev is a blow to Russia's industrial strength and may be also damaging to Russian morale. The city is the third largest in the Soviet Union. It is the metropolis of the Ukraine. Its loss marks a break in the southern sector of the Red army's line of defence, which has left Odessa isolated.

Whether their victory is worth the price will depend on what use the Nazi forces can make of the breach thus opened. Possesion of the city cannot in itself be of great importance. The Ukraine crops are reported to have been threshed and removed, and it is to be supposed the Kiev industries were destroyed before it was evacuated.

In the fighting in and around the city the enemy losses are estimated at 150,000 men. That is itself a terible price to pay for a city which can be little more than an area of wrecked buildings. But Kiev is the first gained of the objectives toward which Hitler headed his armies three months ago, his one tangible prize for the sacrifice of two million German soldiers and the destruction of the allied Rumanian army.

The breach in the southern defence lines is of more immediate consequence than the capture of the city, for this exposes the Russian centre to a possible flank attack and has opened the way for a sweeping Nazi drive along the Black Sea coast toward the oil lines from the Caucasus fields. It equally exposes these advanced Nazi forces to crushing attack from the north and the east if Russian reserves are in position and sufficiently strong. The significance of the fall of Kiev will be known when it is seen how this new "march to the east" results.

Some figures were published not long ago as to the almost unbelievable amounts of food sent from the United States to Britain during the past year. Yet the secretary of agriculture at Washington says United States farmers will have to increase production 2 per cent all round if they are to supply "a quarter of Britain's food needs" during the year coming. This is further official advice that the farmer in Canada can go all-out in the production of pork, cheese, eggs, butter and beef with no danger of creating a surplus.

He pronounces the country suitable for farming purposes. On Friday he visited Edmonton. Further north to the landing it is more suitable for stock raising. His examination of crops showed that there has been no frost up to date, that in luxuriance of growth and yield per acre of wheat, barley, oats and roots, the Edmonton district excels any other part of Manitoba or the Northwest, that the appearance of wheat is not as good as that raised on the drier prairies to the south and southeast, but that oats and barley excel in quality as much as in quantity and that the quality, variety and luxuriance of the native grasses is unapproached elsewhere.

Invasion Of Britain—Might It Be Something Like This?

War Correspondent Draws on Imagination of Picture of Great Event

By DREW MIDDLETON

It could be like this:

Some morning—perhaps next week, next month—the office of the Director of Military Intelligence in the War Office in Whitehall will slide from its usual studied nonchalance to the tenseness it has exhibited on such days as September 2, 1939, and May 10, 1940. There on the desk will lie the evidence, the reports of questionings of German pilots shot down over Britain in the past 48 hours, messages from Sunderlands flying over the North Sea's wastes, reports of fighter pilots back from combat patrols over the French coast.

The evidence adds up to one word—invasion.

Captured German pilots promise a mighty blow by land, sea and air. The Sunderlands report a rendezvous of transports in Norwegian fjords. Fighter pilots see columns of lorries creeping along the narrow straight French roads, barges thick as water bugs in the battered Channel harbours.

Across Whitehall, the Admiralty is awake, too. Destroyers and motor-torpedo boats of the Home Fleet, Coastal Command submarine concentration. From the Admiralty's secret radio station the First Sea Lord "makes a signal." In some far northern harbour the battleship of the Grand Fleet grind as the Royal Navy prepares to spend its finest weapon in the defence of Britain.

The Air Ministry flashes orders to hundreds of airfields where in two's and three's the Spitfires, Hurricanes, and Whitleys and the Bristol Blenheim little trucks trundle out the bombs. The Wellingtons, Hampdens, Halifaxes are loaded and the crews get ready to fly.

Defence Plan

The army puts in motion the delicately-balanced plan with which it hopes to smash the invaders. Tommies nestle in rifle pits and trenches along the coastline with extra ammunition at their sides. Far from the coast gunners clear their weapons' snouts of camouflage. Country towns awake to the new, terrifying sound of modern war—the rattle and grunt of tanks moving into battle formation like prehistoric monsters sloughing off the torpor of winter.

By evening the portents are more plain. The R.A.F. has encountered unusually heavy anti-aircraft fire along the roads leading to the French coast. There are fleets of German fighters where none were before. The heavy German guns are speaking across the Channel with new authority. A score of coastal villages hear a new sound, the rattle of a 14-inch shell as it roars to earth. The quiet estates in Kent old men hear the rumble of the guns and remember how 27 years ago they heard the same sound when von Kluck drove for the Channel ports.

It is a raidless night despite the bright moon. At the War Office a telephone rings in the false dawn: a heavily-guarded German convoy has been sighted in the North Sea. German bombers have for the first time heavily attacked the military fortifications built along the east and south coasts. British destroyers shadow the convoy.

Fateful Hour

Morning breaks. People go to work. But in railway yards, pill boxes, gunemplacements, everywhere activity quickens, men are sweating to see that all things are ready. The day wears on. Winston Churchill stamps to the microphone, and, in the graphic language for which he is famous, tells his people and the world that the hour of decision is at hand.

Day bombing of unprecedented fury pounds the coast from Southampton to the Wash. The R.A.F., harrying the bombers, finds time to report two more convoys in the North Sea and preparations for embarkation of troops at Boulogne, Calais, Lorient, Brest and Bordeaux. The navy attacks the first convoy with destroyers, then reports the convoy a decoy. The bombers move inland. British and German fighters twist and dive, six miles high, as the Fighter Command seeks to smash formations of heavy bombers.

At dusk a British sentry on a southern beach sees a shape loom out of the Channel mist. He hears the field telephone. Junkers dive-bombers scream down from the sky at the defenders of the coasts. Then the army fights its Bren gun on the leading barge and the chatter of small arms and machine-gun fire runs up and down the beach from a hundred hidden nests. The battle of the beaches has begun . . .

This beach, a semi-circular bit of sand backed by cliffs, is an annex to hell.

Crowded With Planes

From dilapidated beach houses, from concealed pill boxes comes the rifle and machine-gun fire of the infantry. The air is heavy with the drone of motors. In the sky above the beach a clash of the German forces seeking local command of the air. From the hills behind come the shells from anti-aircraft guns, the tentative guns, dropping methodically "by squares" in the surf now crowded with the invaders' barges.

A British bomber breaks through the German fighters and lays its stick of bombs across the water. Then two blinding flashes. Twin columns of shattered bodies, water and twisted steel rise into the air. The other barges falter, then come on, bumping the waves created by the explosion.

The Germans swarm ashore through the surf torn by rifle and machine-gun fire. As they pause at the barbed wire, the survivor of an advanced platoon wipes the blood from his eyes and sprays them with his Lewis gun.

Reinforcements dizzy from noise and the heaving earth appear to take the shock of the grey-green tide of Nazis. Three large barges are at shore with men and small tanks pouring from them. Another barge is sinking and a fourth drifts in the surf, its passengers dead after two hits by 60-pounder shells. The rattle of small arms, the thud of bombs, the whine of heavy shells, the shouts of fighting men and the screams of the dying are mingled.

This is one beach. The same scene continues on a hundred others.

Other Battles

Other battles have started. Convoyed by fighters, troop-carriers are heading inland towards airfields and communications centres. The R.A.F. is fighting with everything it has. Fighter pilots bring their planes down, refuel, reload and return to the upper air over the peaceful countryside as the Fighter Command hacks its way into bomber formations. The bombers methodically bomb the barges and the beaches, foray out to sea after new targets.

Some of the troop-carriers, many of the parachutists get through . . . A shepherd on the Yorkshire moors sees a white pear float to earth a mile away. He unslings his rifle, sends his son to the village to tell the minister to "ring the domned bell, the Germans are here." The notes of the bell fall in iron strokes over the countryside the Normans never held. Grimly from field and forge and farmyard men come, some in uniform, some in work-clothes.

As the Germans methodically set up their machine-guns and consult their maps, the rifles of the Home Guard bark from behind fences and hedges.

A plane attacking an airfield near by is jolted by a shell, burst, then a more big troop-carriers. Three fighters and three Junkers dive-bombers strafe the field. The guns swing with them. As the first parachutist lands he explodes smoke bombs. The British machine-guns probe the smoke with thousands of bullets, but a Junkers pancakes on the field and 42 German infantrymen rush from it and take cover in a hangar. The airfield is an arena of fire, but the German fire dwindles.

Naval Battle

Night falls on the sea . . . The grand fleet is engaged for the first time since Jutland. There are five German battleships, including two new ships. They operate from great range behind packs of submarines, destroyers and cruisers.

Three of the British battleships are sinking from torpedo hits. The German dive-bombers have had indifferent success in penetrating the curtain of Fleet Air Arm fighters and pom-pom fire. Slowly the superior weight of metal of the British fleet takes effect. The Luetzow is sunk, the Scharnhorst is burning, a 15-inch shell blows a destroyer in two. To the north, two convoys have been destroyed by the Royal Navy.

Farther south other convoys are through and landing their troops. Destroyers torpedoed by German submarines drift in the swell. New ships come out of their bases to strike at the German line of com-

Moscow Conference Opens

Most Momentous Meeting of War Brings Russia Into New Contacts

By HAROLD L. WEIR

British and American delegates to the long awaited Moscow conference have arrived in the Russian capital and will likely begin their deliberations today.

It is no exaggeration to say that this is the most momentous meeting since the beginning of the war, transcending in importance even the historic conference of Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt of 11 somewhere in the Atlantic.

Harold L. Weir

The meeting of Churchill and Roosevelt had the effect of intensifying an accord that already existed.

The meeting of the British, Americans and Russians will help to decide the course of world history inasmuch as it will probably also decide the future attitude of a vast nation of 192,000,000 people towards the rest of the world.

For nearly twenty years, Europe, Asia and America have quaked at the thought of the tremendous power behind Bolshevism.

It was this universal quaking which provided the raison d'etre for Hitler's Nazism.

Now, in a conference room in Moscow will occur discussions which may determine whether Bolshevism will continue to be a vague, isolated menace, or whether it can be modified into some democratic form which can be made to co-operate with the democratic evolution that the British and American believe is the only salvation of the world.

Many Difficulties

It would be stupid to deny that the conference faces grave difficulties.

Two very grim realities, for instance, stare at the delegates from the very top of the agenda.

The first reality is that the Soviet Union is now up against the greatest crisis of the war and that this crisis may not be resolved until the Russian armies have recoiled far behind their present lines.

The second reality is that Great Britain and the United States, far from having vast quantities of military equipment to pass on to anybody else, are still hard put to supply their own relatively small forces and to prepare further blows against the Germans in the West.

The first thing to be decided, of course, will be the position of the Soviet Union itself.

This will require an unprecedented measure of frankness on the part of the Russians who will have to reveal to the British and the Americans just what their chances are of holding the Germans west of the Volga this Autumn, what industrial potential they expect to retain for the maintenance of their armies this Winter and next Spring and Summer and what their absolutely minimum requirements from abroad are going to be.

The Russians must be prepared to be extremely precise about all these matters and to refrain from making any demands which are not absolutely essential in the late issue which is the defense of Russia during the Fall and Winter campaign.

Russia will be given everything that can be spared. But she will not be given a blank cheque.

The British and American spokesmen in Moscow will have the formidable and embarrassing task of deciding what their two nations can produce for the Russians in fact and what cannot be produced to be explained to them. They will not only have to persuade the Russians that they are making the maximum effort on their behalf, but they will have to persuade the people at home that the minimums which are fixed are really minimums which must be achieved at any cost.

Neither job promises to be easy. But the two delegations have the great advantage of having men who know their business and who command the complete confidence of the governments in London and Washington.

Russia Alone

So far, Russia has been almost entirely on her own in this war and she will probably continue to be until the issue of the present campaign has been decided. Both the British and the American people feel that Russian isolation deeply, but they will have to be realists enough to bear in mind that Stalin had many opportunities to help the British before he was attacked and passed them by. His opposition to the Germans was not in the nature of a crusade to humanity but was undertaken sheerly in the desperation of self-defense.

Further, the British have been handicapped by their inability to provide for building up their forces in the Near East, expanding their home bombing forces and strengthening their domestic defenses.

If the Moscow conference is the result of the Moscow meeting, it is that both British and American production must be boosted to a level which neither government seems to have contemplated up until a few months ago.

Without at least a promise of such production it is difficult to see how the Moscow conference can be anything more than a beautiful gesture and a sorry disappointment.

Nor can any intelligent forecaste be made without a more intimate knowledge of what is in Stalin's mind.

If he is wearying of the war, if he fears its continuance may destroy Communism, or if he is unwilling to make those gestures of political and economic and economic co-operation which should be the natural sequel to war collaboration, there is a small but distressing chance that he may ask so much of the British and Americans that they may be compelled to refuse.

In that case, it is not beyond the pale of possibility that he might declare he has been "let down" by his allies and axe Hitler for a negotiated peace.

Mr. Hoover And His Historical Analogies

History Defeats Every Argument of the Isolationists Says Noted Columnist

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

In 1932, Mr. Hoover expressed the belief that prosperity was just around the corner. If we could only wait patiently and do nothing more than we were doing. Now he says that victory is just around the corner, if we wait and see.

Dorothy Thompson

I wish I could be as certain as Mr. Hoover is that Britain and Russia and the revolt of European nations will arrive with even less aid than we are giving, which is what Mr. Hoover wants. But over-optimism is in, and has been, the downfall of other democracies.

Mr. Hoover thinks that Hitler will be destroyed by the revolt of the subject populations. But what is to be the revolt will that be? What sort of chaos will ensue?

These questions are of prime importance. Because Russia were to win the war against Hitler and turn out to be the liberator of subject nationalities. I was always sure, therefore, that Mr. Hoover was opposed to Communism. But if Communism turns out to be the subjected and violated nations' only hope, it would seem that that stock would be very high. Suppose Britain and Russia win the war together, without our aid, except as a sort of charity, what stock will Communism have in England? It hasn't any rating there at present. But if Stalin emerges in the role that Tsar Alexander was able to assume after the Napoleonic wars—and without us as balance—what then?

If Hitler Wins

But suppose Hitler defeats both Russia and Britain. I beg my readers to regard this as a strong possibility that would become an immediate probability if the United States were one iota less firm than she has been to date. How then would the populations revolt?

They would revolt as a working-class movement against the capitalists, for the capitalists would be Hitler's new order, the Germans and the German fellow-travellers. Already the Nazi victors are systematically appropriating the shares of the leading industrial firms of the whole of Europe, "compensating" them in worthless inflated paper money of the occupied countries. Without aid to the democratic nations with the right to establish order, the people would have no recourse but to underground movements of sabotage and strikes which would certainly become violently radical and directed against the foreign overlord ownership.

What does Mr. Hoover think the repercussions upon this country would be with the old word—Europe, Asia, and Africa—thus enslaved? Or might Mr. Hoover was a Conservative and a lover of order? What in such a case, would he support? Hitler and the forces of suppression, or a violent social upheaval?

Superficial

Mr. Hoover gives an account of the results of the last war and peace, which seems to me very superficial. He gives the usual version existing in American society, that we were righteous idealists sitting at a peace table with thieves. Left out of account is the fact that Woodrow Wilson's program, which included the League of Nations, was being sabotaged by the isolationist senators of Mr. Hoover's own party.

We lost the peace, Mr. Hoover, because we withdrew from it, refusing to take any responsibility for the future of the world. If a nation refuses to take the responsibilities that its influence and power has put into its hands, it cannot expect others to carry out its duties.

And left out of account, as a direct contributing cause to the chaos of Europe, is the economic policy pursued from Harding to Mr. Hoover himself.

Emerging from the last war as the leading creditor nation of the world, with a choice of keeping the debts and stimulating free trade, or of abolishing the debts and keeping a protected market, we actually, under Republican administrations, insisted on the debts, raised the tariff, and forced up our own exports by vast new private loans to an already indebted Europe.

The result of this policy was to bankrupt Europe and plunge ourselves with it into an unprecedented panic. It was that panic that gave Germany Adolf Hitler—and gave America Mr. Roosevelt.

Half Stories Dangerous

Historical analogies are dangerous, especially if the story is only half told. Mr. Hoover reminds us that a certain journalist, Fisher Ames, was a "warmonger" during the Napoleonic wars, urging us to join Britain, and saying, "Let no man be deceived; if Bonaparte prevails, we shall be his vassals . . . We shall be reduced to play a new role."

Mr. Hoover omits to mention that the head of the pro-British party in America at that time was not a journalist but the leader of his own party, Alexander Hamilton; that Thomas Jefferson, who refused to take up arms with Britain against Napoleon, did not keep us out of war, but got us into war against Britain; that Washington was invaded and burned; that we had to make peace with that war with a compromise peace; and that Britain and Russia did lick Napoleon.

The peace treaty made after the defeat of Napoleon was not much to our liking. But we were considerably farther from Europe then than now, and were not a great power in this world. Neither our lack of action has repercussions on the whole world. Yet, even then we were involved in that war—on the wrong side.

Monroe Doctrine

The Monroe doctrine that Mr. Hoover supports came to us through the assistance and collaboration of Great Britain. Had Napoleon won, we wouldn't have had it. If Hitler—defeated by Russia and Britain—should win, he will not have it, either—unless, as Senator D. Worth Clark suggested, we start out to make revolutions to our liking in all the Latin-American republics, and, as Lindbergh suggests, dictates by threat of force to Canada and Mexico.

That would be rather more difficult than helping Britain win this war, and restoring to Europe that order, freedom, and legitimate government, which is indigenous to all of western civilization, and is not, normally speaking, a monopoly of the United States.

Neither prosperity, victory, nor peace are ever around the corner for those who wait to see what will turn up. What turns up is depression, defeat, and chaos. Prosperity is maintained by wise policies. Victory is won by brave men. Peace is made by the wise and the just and the constructive. And none of the three is ever won and made forever.

Alberta District News In Brief

Large Amounts

Aluminum Response Favorable

LACOMBE—Response to the appeal of the local branch of the Red Cross Society for old aluminum was most generous and a large amount was collected for shipment to Calgary. A large cage was erected on one of the downtown streets to receive donations of aluminum and a group of high school students also made a house-to-house canvass of the town to gather up old pots and pans.

BANQUET MEETING

Lacombe and District Board of Trade members will be hosts to 25 officers and men of the R.A.F. station at Penhold at a banquet meeting Friday, when one of the officers will give an address on the experiences of the British airmen in Canada.

POLIO CASES LOW

Threat of infantile paralysis in the Lacombe area has almost ceased with the recovery of a five-year-old boy residing in town who was placed under quarantine. Only cases in the district now are those of a 21-year-old woman and a 12-year-old boy in the Morningside district, who are making good progress while under quarantine.

LANDMARK GOES

After being a landmark in Lacombe for the past 41 years, the Alberta feed stable is being torn down. At one time it was the centre for everything which moved on wheels in the Lacombe area, but its usefulness finally passed with the increasing popularity of "gasoline buggies".

HOW TO GET A RAISE

The left-hand definition column is for seven-letter words whose middle letters are now in place. The right-hand definition column is for words to be made by removing two letters from the seven-letter words and then re-arranging the five remaining letters.

The two middle columns are for the letters that you take out; but you must decide which letters goes into which column, for the letters in these columns, reading UPWARDS, spell words. Naturally they have to read upwards instead of downwards in this puzzle, because you must start at the bottom to succeed.

VEGREVILLE—In the "Jam for Britain" drive being conducted in Vegreville and district by the Vegreville Branch of the Red Cross, 176 tins of jam have already been contributed. It is thought that a total of 200 tins will be attained before the drive is over.

Appreciation of this willingness to assist the war effort was expressed when a new corvette of the Royal Canadian Navy was named after the town.

Pittsburg Banker Sends Rocky Youth To American University

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE.—Arnold Spoor left this week to take his second year in Geology at the Pittsburgh university. Richard K. Mellon of the Pittsburgh banking family, met Arnold two years ago when he was on a big game hunting trip into the mountains, and Arnold was looking after the horses for Ray Mustard, guide and outfitter. Mr. and Mrs. Mellon were interested in the boy and offered to put him through university when he finished high school in Rocky. He is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spoor and was born here. Mr. Spoor, proprietor of a meat market here, came from England 30 years ago.

SNOW REPORTED

About six inches of snow fell Thursday. The storm lasting 24 hours. Roads that were bad before the snow, are impassable now, even the mail freighters could not get through Thursday afternoon, and will try to make their trips on Friday with horses. Threshing that farmers thought would start by the end of week has been postponed for at least another ten days. All wild berries were destroyed by the storm.

CLUB ORGANIZES

The curling club is organizing to paint the inside of the rink that has been raised, placed on a cement foundation, insulated, and sheeted inside and out.

Businessmen To Ride New Road

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE—Just a year ago, a party from here went west over creeks and mountains to the Banff-Jasper highway, hewing the last 34 miles out of the mountain wilderness.

This week, they started off again, following the same route. They were Ernest Ross, F. S. Brett, W. Ellenburgh and W. H. Schierholtz, who made the trip last year plus four others, Charles Bruce, F. D. Shaw, Federal member for this constituency, Rev. Father Niel McKenzie and S. G. Hooker. They hope this time to take three cars through. A party from Banff, headed by George Brewster, will meet them at the junction on Saturday, and from there they will all go to Banff and home by Calgary.

The object of these trips is to show how easy it would be to build a highway west from here. There are now 87 miles of good road to Windy Point, and from there 20 miles across the Kootenay Plains is just a matter of throwing up a grade. From Whirlpool Point, the road will run through the big timber country.

The government is being urged to place internment camps on this uncompleted stretch, and the Rocky Board of Trade will communicate with other towns in the district to ask their assistance in urging that work be done on the road.

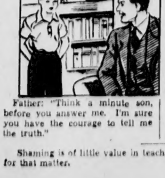

Meeting Planned

CORONATION — The Women's Hospital Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. Frank Mitchell on Friday at 8:15 p.m.

Points For Parents

Father: "Think a minute son, before you answer me. I'm sure you have the courage to tell me the truth."

Father: "Shame on you—trying to lie out of everything! I'd be ashamed to be such a coward if I were you."

Shaming is of little value in teaching truthfulness—or anything else, for that matter.

5-Pound Limit To Christmas Parcel

By GLADYS ARNOLD

OTTAWA, Sept. 23.—Tip to Canadians getting ready their parcels of Christmas gifts for shipment overseas: Don't make them more than five pounds apiece.

Post office officials said last night that if Canadians wish their Christmas parcels for friends or relatives in British to arrive safely and avoid confiscation under United Kingdom regulations they must see that the parcels weigh not more than five pounds, including paper, string and stamps."

"There may be some confusion still remaining in the minds of senders," said one authority. "The point is you cannot send five pounds of food or other gifts but the entire parcel must weigh not over five pounds. To be on the safe side it would be well to be a few ounces under."

"In packing food it should be remembered too," said an official, "that no more than six pounds of any food should be sent at a time. Otherwise the parcel may be confiscated."

Ottawa Surprised At Bond Reports

OTTAWA, Sept. 23—(CP)—Financial officials expressed surprise Monday over a New York report which said financial circles there held that Canada might offer a large issue of refunding bonds in the New York market within the next few months if the United States Neutrality Act were modified and a definite exchange agreement worked out between the two countries.

"Those are pretty big ifs and nothing has come to our attention to bear it out," said one source.

munications across the Channel. From the Brittany peninsula to the North Sea the air is heavy with the fire of naval guns. Peasants in Belgium find the bodies of German soldiers washed ashore.

At midnight in London the capital is going through the worst raid of the war. Waves of bombers have struck at the railway stations, the bridges across the Thames, at the information centres, Fleet Street and the B.B.C. For the first time dive-bombers have defied the barrage balloons and dived at their targets. No. 10 Downing Street is a ruin. The Prime Minister is directing the war from an underground shelter. The War Office is burning.

SIX ASSAULTS

At headquarters the General Staff surveys the situation. Germans have landed at six places on the southeast coasts. At two points they were repulsed with heavy losses, the beaches still in British hands. At two other points they drove through the British on the coast and were counter-attacked by British tanks and armoured cars, scattered by the infantry and left to the Home Guard.

Two dangerous bridgeheads have been made. At least five divisions have poured through one, three different divisional markings have been identified on prisoners from another. As the battle for the skies goes on, Guards and infantry of the line, Scots and Irish, Welsh and Canadians, New Zealanders, and Australians throw themselves on the solid, steady ranks of Saxons, Bavarians, Prussians.

The parachutists have taken twelve landing fields. But the R.A.F. still command the air over Britain, and British guns have churned the landing fields into masses of torn earth and smashed aircraft.

From the Navy comes the signal, "Grand Fleet reports all enemy battleships but one sunk, now moving against main line of communications."

The chief of the Imperial General Staff scans the latest reports. German armoured units have reached Tunbridge Wells, 30 miles from London. He takes the necessary steps," and the British army gathers itself for the final struggle.

General Sir John Dill gets up and lights his pipe. He glances out the window. Dawn is breaking and England may be won or lost this day.

That is how it could be.

Looking them Over
by JACK KELLY

AMONG other ways this war is going to affect sport after the shooting dies down is to set the stage for a boom in boxing.

Just about every enlisted man in the forces of the British Empire and the United States is getting some boxing in his training and an insight into the art of punching. By every possible means his combative spirit is being developed to the highest pitch.

When these boys finish their current engagement with the Nazi contenders, they will provide a large and enthusiastic reservoir of boxing fans and undoubtedly among them will be scores anxious to cash in on their own fighting ability.

The boys who have been on active service will naturally turn out to cheer old comrades in arms and to taste again for a little while the lusty wine of physical combat.

However this post-war revival of sport interest will not be limited to boxing. Life in the armed services will have driven a lot of pantywaist ideas out of the boys and replaced them with more virile interests. Veterans of 1914-1918 were, and still are, the staunchest supporters of sport in these parts.

Apres la Guerre, Comrade

RIGHT here it should be noted that Ottawa has a committee drawing up plans to carry Canada from a war economy to a peace economy. This body is said to be preparing a list of public and private enterprises that it is hoped will provide work during the years the demobilized men are being absorbed back into civilian life.

Edmonton should see to it that it submits a few projects for the committee to list. Right at the top of our list should be an arena the full size of the market square—and right on it.

For once let us have a civic building we can point to with pride, a structure that each and every one of us can get some comfort, convenience and enjoyment out of.

It was five years ago that this column first drew a picture of a market square arena and it seems to have stuck in a lot of minds as the only satisfactory solution. The plan is to tear out the present market building and make the new structure the full size of the square. Market stalls would be arrang around the four sides in the form of an arcade—a double row of stalls and shops. The arena proper should seat from eight to ten thousand. Several gymnasiums, a big pool for mixed swimming and a number of smaller rooms available for various public meetings and so on should also be included in the plans.

You may think this a colossal undertaking that we couldn't make full use of for decades to come. It is nothing of the sort. Eight thousand seats would not be filled all the time—they aren't even in Madison Square Gardens—but they would all be taken a surprising number of times each year—say for half a dozen playoff hockey games, when national party leaders speak here and so on. The gyms, swimming pool and meeting rooms would be busy every night of the week the year around.

If this structure is ever built, a big bronze tablet should be erected at the main entrance giving the names of the civic and Dominion government members who made it possible. They will be honored as no others ever have been here.

Clarke Stadium is a grand and fitting memorial to one man with foresight and the public welfare at heart—the late Joe Clarke. There are mighty few people enter that stadium without paying a silent and sincere tribute to "Fighting Joe" who envisioned it and fought for it against seemingly hopeless odds until it was completed.

An accomplishment like that stamps a life as having been worthwhile instead of just a momentary exhibition of the biological mystery of life, such as might be given by a mouse, worm or dandelion.

Answer to Duffer's Prayer

Golf-Ball Retrieving Dogs Keep Two Men Comfortably

VANCOUVER, Sept. 23.—(CP)—It's been every golfer's dream to train the household's pet dog to retrieve the balls he hooks and slices into the clump of trees on the ninth or the dried-up slough at the bottom of the hill on the 12th.

Most golfers just dream about it—It's a lot easier than trying to hammer into Fido's head that he's supposed to root out a little white ball and bring it back to his master's feet.

But two Vancouver men, who make the West Point Golf Club here their headquarters, have trained five dogs to hunt golf balls for them. Not only do the dogs nose out and retrieve the lost pills but their retrieving provides a living for their masters, D. J. Gregson and Fred Housser.

NIGHT AND DAY

Four of the dogs are Springers and one a Chesapeake. Mr. Gregson says he and his partner once grossed $60 a week and over a period of five or six years have lived comfortably through the findings of the canines.

The two men make a full-time job of scouring the course for the lost balls Mr. Gregson working the day shift and Mr. Housser taking the night trick, which begins at 6 o'clock.

Four of the dogs, Belle, Lady, Duke and Flossie, are veterans while the fifth, two-year-old Laddie, is a mere rookie just getting the hang of things. Duke, the Chesapeake, is shortly to go on the retired list after hunting out thousands of lost balls.

TEAM-WORK

It's a sight to see the dogs at work. Moving in teams, they nose through those heart-breaking spots where the ball always seems to defy hours of search by those who follow the little white pill. For each ball he retrieved the dogs get a biscuit.

"I guess Belle has retrieved thousands of balls since we first brought her here," Mr. Gregson says. "She's a wonderful worker. The Chesapeake, Duke, has also brought back thousands. Laddie is, of course, a rookie, but Flossie and Lady are experienced and work nicely."

Gregson and Housser sell the best of the balls to the club and the rest they re-paint and put on sale themselves.

SPORTS BULLETIN

For Cameramen Only

This picture would lead you to believe Northwestern backs have just lots of fun pegging footballs through tires, but this is no way to acquire knack of hitting moving target in eye at so many paces. Besides, Lynn Waldorf knows who will pass for Wildcats, and there is no time for this kind of monkey business. Backs are, left to right: Bill deCorrevont, Otto Graham, Dan Williams, Don Kruger, Bud Kean, Don Buffmire, Jim Furlong and Floyd Chambers.

No Foolish Frolicking

Football Tough, Serious Business For Collegians

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(NEA)—High pressure college athletic publicity men open each football season with gag pictures that frequently gag the customers.

No campaign is officially under way until the sports editor's desk has been cluttered with such silly camera ideas as:

Passers firing the ball through suspended tires or bull's-eyes. The blokes must throw their arms out here, because most of them won't complete a pass all season.

Squad men crashing recklessly through paper schedules, though they probably didn't win a game last season.

Ball carriers, many of whom coaches would consider lucky if they ever got over the line of scrimmage, racing over barriers marked with names of opponents.

Tackles, incapable of getting within recognizing distance of the guy on the field, fiercely smacking a defenceless dummy labeled as All-American Joe Twinkletoes.

Pretty co-eds explaining the principals of rhythm to bruisers whose only rhythm can be found in the steady movement of their jaws at a dinner table.

Shelving to make the sports pages, the boys often contribute ideas even more far-fetched and ludicrous—shoving a puffing locomotive around for example.

COLLEGE PLAYER PUTS IN FULL DAY

Press agents and photographers appeased, players knuckle down to serious business.

Their chores are a far cry from what pictures would have you believe.

Using Columbia University, coached by Lou Little, as a criterion, here is the average day in the life of a college football player before school begins.

Breakfast is at 8 a.m. Players lounge around and swap small talk until 10, when they get into shorts for a two hour session.

Calisthenics open the workout and are followed by fundamental drills in kicking, passing, spinning, faking etc. Coaches work with players individually, pointing out mistakes and giving helpful advice. There is no contact work.

As quickly as the noble athletes have showered and dressed, they have lunch. Then comes skull sessions. Backs gather with the backfield coach, ends with the end coach and so on down the line.

Perhaps a half-hour of leisure separates the blackboard talks and the day's second practice. This one is for keeps. Players don complete equipment.

Full uniform constitutes, from head to foot, helmet, shoulder pads, possibly elbow guards, jersey, hip pads and thigh guards, molded to fit each individual, pants, ankle bands, stockings and shoes.

A complete uniform weighs from 14 to 18 pounds.

Strenuous blocking and tackling drills and squad scrimmage are on the menu. Fundamentals worked out in the morning dummy scrimmage are put to test.

Lights dim dark when the squad is dismissed. After dinner the athletes are free until 10:30 p.m., when they are checked into their rooms. Tired from a full day, they usually need no urging to go to bed.

Naturally, when classes and the season begin the schedule is changed. A two-hour practice is held each afternoon starting about 4 p.m. Skull drills come after dinner twice a week.

A football player's life is not as soft as the public relations gentlemen would have you believe. There is no time for foolishness before or during the big season ahead.

If Uncle Sam should lock horns with Adolf, he could do worse than draft college football players.

They know how to take orders and stand up in rough going.

Cardinal Boss Remains Hopeful

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The refreshed Cardinals, still nipping at the heels of Brooklyn in the fight for the National League pennant, left Monday night for their last-ditch stand against Pittsburgh and Chicago.

For the important doubleheader with the Pirates today Manager Billy Southworth announced he probably would rely on Mort Cooper, a right-hander, in the first game and southpaw Max Lanier in the second.

Cooper has won 13 and lost eight, Lanier has nine and lost eight.

Six games remain for the Cards to only four for the Dodgers. The hill which faces the Cards is pretty steep but Southworth summed it up in one sentence:

"We'll have to win all six games while the Dodgers have got to drop one of theirs and wouldn't it be great if this happened, after the way they've been so sure of themselves."

Seattle On Top In Coast League

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The curtain dropped on the Pacific Coast League pennant chase Sunday with Seattle the winner, but a playoff is necessary to decide second place.

Sacramento split a twin bill with Oakland, and ended the season in a tie for the runner-up spot with San Diego Padres. Sacramento took the opener 10-6, but lost the nightcap 3-6. San Diego and Sacramento will meet Tuesday night to decide second place.

The Sacramento-San Diego game Tuesday will count in the Shaughnessy playoffs. Seattle opens its playoff series against Hollywood, which finished in fourth place.

Ruffing Will Start Series

Yankees' Pitching Staff Offers Mystifying Puzzle

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Pitching is 75 per cent of any good ball game and is 90 per cent of a world series—but for the classic opening next week it is the 100 per cent incalculable factor.

Nobody knows what team, let alone what pitchers, will represent the National League. And even though the American League champions, New Yorkees, have had weeks to prepare, they still will bring one of the most mystifying pitching staffs ever to get into a series.

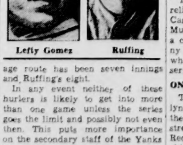

The Yanks won their fifth pennant in six years without a pitcher winning 20 games. They won their championship because they had the best rounded pitching staff in the league, with seven or eight starting pitchers, and because two old warhorses, Charles "Red" Ruffing and Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, became the most certain winners in the junior circuit when given enough rest.

RUFFING WILL START

Ruffing and Gomez each has won 15 games and Ruffing, who has been beaten five times to his side-kicks four, will be the pitcher for New York in the opening game of the series.

Each of these veteran stars has pitched in six previous series contests. Ruffing won five and lost one, while Gomez never has been licked.

Gomez has started 32 games, and finished only eight. Ruffing has finished 13 out of 32 Gomez ever-age route has been seven innings and Ruffing's eight.

Lefty Gomez Ruffing

In any event neither of these hurlers is likely to get into more than one game unless the series goes the limit and possibly not even then. This puts more importance on the secondary staff of the Yanks than on any series team in years.

PLENTY MORE

Spurgeon "Spud" Chandler, Lefty Marius Russo, Atley Donald and Ernie Bonham, in about that order, would be manager Joe McCarthy's starting selections for the other games with Johnny Murphy, Norman Branch, Steve Peek, Marvin Breuer and Charley Stanceu held for relief.

Murphy is one of the best relief pitchers in the business and has been on four previous world series teams.

The National League teams present a different proposition. Brooklyn Dodgers have the circuit's two leading winners in Whitlow Wyatt and Kirby Higbe, each of them victors in 21 games so far. But St. Louis Cardinals have a better balanced staff.

If the Dodgers make the grade, Wyatt is the obvious choice for the first game with Higbe, Fred Fitzsimmons and Curt Davis probably taking the next turns.

The Dodgers have one excellent relief pitcher in chubby Hugh Casey, who is just as capable as Murphy. They also have picked up a couple of castoffs recently, Johnny Allen and Lefty Larry French, who are likely to be used in the series.

ONLY ONE SOUTHPAW

The big weakness of the Brooklyn mound staff is that French is the only southpaw. This is the strength of the St. Louis staff. The Redbirds have Ernie White, probably the best lefthander in either major league this year, Howard Pollet, sensational rookie, and Max Lanier.

The Yankee batting order is heavy with lefthanders — Keller, Henrich, Dickey, Rolfe, et al—and good southpaws are priceless for such a series. White has won 17 games and Pollet has captured five out of six since joining the club last month. Krist is a good relief worker with 10 victories and no defeats.

In addition the Cards have good right-handed hurlers — the veteran Lon Warneke, Mort Cooper and Harry Gumbert.

National Prexy Says Philly Sale Nugent's Affair

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Ford Frick, president of the National League, sent word to John B. Kelly Monday that Gerry Nugent alone has the right to sell the Phillies.

Kelly, director of civilian physical training under the defence program, heads a syndicate whose offer to buy the Phillies was turned down by Nugent, president of the club, and who, with Mrs. Nugent, controls the majority of the 5,000 outstanding shares. Kelly said he had forwarded a copy of the syndicate's offer to Frick.

"I've seen Kelly's offer," Frick declared. "But it's not within my jurisdiction to say whether Nugent should accept it or not. We cannot force Nugent to sell. It's his ball club and strictly his business if and when he wants to sell. The National League would be interested only if the club franchise was dropped in our laps, as was the case when Judge Fuchs stepped out as head of the Boston Braves."

"Until I talk things over with the people I'm representing, I can make no further comment on the matter," Kelly said.

Passing Brings All Touchdowns

WINNIPEG, Sept. 23.—(CP)—Hardrock Greg Kabat came home last night, but he and his were not given a very cordial welcome. Instead, Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Kabat's old love, hammered out an 18-0 triumph over Hardrock's Vancouver Grizzlies and used the Pacific coast team as a stepping stone to a top-spot tie with Regina Roughriders in the Western Conference standings.

Three touchdowns, two of them converted, plus a rouge, made up the Bombers' score as they swarmed over the Vancouver team in their first meeting of the Western Conference schedule.

Ken Preston took a pass from Art Stevenson for the opening Bomber touchdown early in the first quarter and Ches McCance converted from placement.

PRESTON GOES OVER

That ended the scoring until the early part of the third period when long Bud Marquardt crashed through a tangle of Grizzlies and smeared a Grizzly behind his own line for a single point. Just before the quarter ended Stevenson tossed the ball 23 yards to Preston who was standing 10 yards out from the Vancouver goal line, then Art carried the ball over himself for the second major score and McCance converted again.

Bombers apparently were hot content with their 13-point margin and kept pressing until a few minutes before the closing gun Wayne Sheley rifled a pass 30 yards to Cliff McFayden who went over Vancouver's line standing up. Sammy Lavitt missed the convert.

COMPLETE EIGHT FORWARDS

Statistics showed that Bombers completed eight out of 20 passes while Vancouver connected once in seven tries. Grizzlies' single completed pass netted them a 12-yard gain while Bombers picked up 175 yards through their aerial attack.

Stan Laycock, Vancouver end, was taken to hospital after being shaken up shortly after the opening whistle but hospital officials reported later he was "fine" and needed only "a rest."

In their two battles this season, Bombers have beaten both Regina and Vancouver and have not been scored against. They have compiled 29 points. They play the Grizzlies here again Thursday night.

LeRoy Mills Is Dead, But His System Lives On

BOSTON, Sept. 23. — Mighty Princeton was being pressed impudently in an early season football game one bright-and-blue Saturday away back there in 1903, and at one tense stage of the unexpectedly stern session, they pulled a guard named LeRoy Mills out of the forward trenches to punt. Smoothing his Paderewski hair-do and giving his quilted britches a straightening hitch, this four-square Bengal took the old-fashioned end-over-end pass from centre, turned a little toward his right and, instead of pumping the melon straight down the pasture toward the safety man, he gave it a long angular ride, away from that worthy and over the sideline into the lower fringe of spectators.

This killed the ball, of course, and surrendered it to the opposition at the point of its departure from the field of play, but it likewise killed any chance of a run-back and the punt snatcher of the visitors had been running 'em back all through the livelong day.

It seems very unlikely to your correspondent that this was the first deliberate sideline kill in all history, but there must have been something unusual about it. Mills must have crossed up the Princeton coach of the hour for he was immediately subtracted from the contest, bawled out by the coach and told to sit the rest of it out.

INCIDENTAL CAREER

THIS unhappy experience gave the Princeton gridster a cause, an incidental career that was just moving into real fame when his death cut it short, and left floating around loose what may be a very exact science that could really come into its own this season under one of the new rule changes.

Mills never got on at Princeton after that. In fact, he got married and quit the university. With it, he took the feeling that he'd been wronged by that coach, and the determination to prove to all the world that he was right when he kicked the ball away from instead of to the man who was waiting for it.

From this, in time, came his theory of "controlled kicking," and, before he died, no man who ever lived could do what he could with a football. Even at 55, he could drive one any distance from one yard up to 80, could make it do what he wanted it to, could almost stop it on a dime. The man was a wizard.

His basic profession was the law and his home was in Mt. Vernon, N.Y. His first teaching was done with the Mt. Vernon high school kids. He had no professional connection with the school, but the coach was his friend.

STUDY MARKS OF FEET

THERE was a powerful, almost a forbidding, lot to it, as he operated it. He wanted to see a boy walk, to study the marks of his feet. If he toed out badly, he was a doubtful candidate for this type of instruction. He'd have a boy close his eyes and walk 50 feet. If he were right-handed by nature, yet had a tendency to circle to his left while walking with his eyes shut, there was some sort of conflict in his make-up which made him no good for this business.

When his Mt. Vernon kickers began to show up on college fields, coaches and sports writers began to blink astonished eyes. Two of the first named, Cadigan and Wilson, began to do things with the football at Amherst, but national attention began to focus on Mills only when Frank Cardeo, one of the Vernon hopefuls, began to grow famous at Notre Dame.

Many a coach, most of them, in fact, tell a player to forget his high school technique. Dick Harlow's celebrated abjuration being, for instance, "Dear boy, please try it my way," and most of the time, of course, they're right. But, as Rockne watched Cardeo kicking, he said, "I haven't got the slightest idea of what you're trying to do. I never saw anything like it, nor ever even heard of anything like it. But you go right ahead and do it. Maybe you can teach me!"

ALL AMERICA

CARDEO'S mastery of the punted football made him All America, kept Notre Dame up there and brought Mills into the truly national limelight. Cardeo was strictly a Mills product. He was a good drop kicker and place kicker, but a poor punter in high school. He never did boot 'em far, even at Notre Dame, but the way he could call his shots, get extra distance with rolls and turn spirals off the field not a yard from the goal line is all part of the golden legend of Knute Rockne's last years.

Because of Cardeo, the tall Mt. Vernon lawyer began to receive calls from many colleges. He was away as much as 17 week-ends a season, and in the list of colleges that called him in were such names as Army, Columbia, Dartmouth, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Amherst, Wesleyan, Fordham, Northwestern, Mississippi State and many more.

And he died, probably as he would have wished to, almost literally while working with the Princeton punters on the Princeton practice field. That was in 1937. Dartmouth had beaten the Tigers 23-7 on a Saturday afternoon, and Mills came over the next day, Sunday, to work with Tom Mountain and the other Princeton punters who'd had a bad day against the Green. Feeling cold on the field, he stepped into the locker room to get a sweater. He was stricken with a heart attack just inside the door and died on the Princeton rubbing table.

UNDERSTOOD THEORIES

STRANGELY enough, the player who understood his theories best, who still believes in them most and who became his staunchest disciple and friend was no pupil of his either in high school or college. That was Little Ziggy Ewart of Yale, who heard first about Mills from his prep school coach, after he, Ewart, was a member of the Yale varsity and who looked the lawyer up on his own initiative. He is the greatest authority upon the Mills system extant, and he can do most of the things with a football that Mills did.

The new style making a touchback of a punt touched by a player of the kicking side inside the opponents 10 yard line puts an almighty premium upon the precision kicker who can repeatedly turn that ball out of bounds in the true coffin corner.

That's one specialty of the Mills system. There are several others.

If he were around, he'd be in terrific demand today, but, anyway, he proved his point.

That was his main idea.

Maple Leafs Play Spitfires Tonight

South Side Spitfires tonight have their last chance to upset the Maple Leafs, leaders of the City Junior Football league in a regular scheduled game. The two clubs meet at 8 p.m. in the seventh junior loop fixture at Clarke Stadium.

In their previous two clashes Tommy Hays' gridders have come from behind in the last few minutes to grab the decision and no doubt will be out tonight to make it three straight, which incidentally would run the Leafs' unbeaten string this fall to five wins.

On their showing against the Edmonton Athletic Club last Saturday, the South Siders are going to be hard to head off tonight and as both clubs have shown a continued improvement in their play since the start of the season the battle this evening between the two loop leaders should be a real one.

Third Year War-time Football

British Soccer Prospects Bright For Current Season

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(CP)—Great Britain's third wartime football season, which opened on a note of discord promises to prosper despite the wrangling which created a split among some teams and sent others to the sidelines. Favored by the finest weather in six weeks, opening games in the major leagues attracted 130,000 spectators, an average of 4,000 a game. High scoring and use of a large number of home town players in the lineups gave the crowds their money's worth.

For three months the future of British football has been in a precarious position. London clubs, whose huge stadia hold the largest crowds and whose visits to provincial towns are the highlight of the smaller towns' season, were dissatisfied with the schedule prepared by the football league.

This called for teams like Arsenal, Tottenham and Millwall travelling to Swansea and Cardiff for games and the London clubs, protesting against the long trips, withdrew from the league and formed their own competition.

The league subsequently announced the London clubs and others from nearby which were given a place in the new competition had forfeited their membership.

IN TWO SECTIONS

The football league runs its war-time football in two sections, one for southern teams and the other for northern. The northern half was not affected by the split, but withdrawal of 16 teams for the new London competition shattered plans for the south.

The league did its best to arrange matches for the handful of teams still willing to play under its jurisdiction but some clubs threatened with nothing but minor attractions, withdrew from play altogether rather than face an uncertain future.

On opening day 18 teams sent the London competition away to a flying start. There were 10 northern teams engaged in league matches.

FEATURE MATCHES

Feature matches were between Brentford and Arsenal in London and Preston North End and Blackpool in the north. Arsenal and Preston were war cup finalists last season and 12,000 fans turned out for each game.

An aggressive second half attack that netted three goals brought Brentford a 4-1 victory, while Preston, the champions, got off on the right foot with a 3-1 triumph.

An experiment, which other clubs watched with interest, was tried by Wolverhampton Wanderers against Bristol City in a southern section match. Like most other teams, the Wolves have been hard by the call-up, losing most of their regulars, so for this game fielded an under-19 eleven.

WOLVES HAVE BOYS

There were two boys of 16, seven of 17 and two of 18, with Jimmy Mullen, 18-year-old winger, the only player with league experience. The youngsters played a grand game but the City were too good for them, winning 4-2.

Luton, with four 'teen aged players, got off to a better start against Nottingham Forest in another Southern Section match, winning 3-1. The accent on youth was stressed in the north, too, where J. Bassnett, 18, scored three goals in Stoke's 8-2 victory over Everton.

Here are highlights of some other matches:

Biggest score was Manchester United's 13-1 victory over New Brighton. Rowley got seven goals.

Sunderland, returning to league play, thrashed Sheffield United 7-1 before a crowd of 10,000.

George Camsell, starting his 17th season for Middlesbrough, scored a goal in his team's 3-1 victory over Huddersfield.

Clapton Orient, suspended at the close of last season because of debts, then readmitted, picked up right where they left off. They were trounced 8-3 by Reading, London war cup holders.

In the Scottish Southern League, Glasgow Rangers, defending champions, marked up their fourth straight victory, beating Airdrie 6-1. They are the only unbeaten and untied team in the league.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By FOSTER BARCLAY

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(CP)—Steve Donoghue, British famed jockey, may return to the saddle before the flat racing season ends in November. The 56-year-old former jockey still wiry and muscular, said he had been considering proposals to don silks again because of a shortage of riders.

Robert (Bobby) Peel, famous Yorkshire lefthand bowler who played for England in 20 test matches against Australia, died at the age of 84.

German authorities have granted the International Red Cross at Geneva permission to send sport news to British prisoners of war in Germany. A correspondent in Switzerland writes a fortnightly newspaper which is distributed to all prison camps.

George Goode of Leicester, former Tigers' rugby player, has been taken prisoner in the Middle East. He was captured a month after receiving the Distinguished Flying Cross from the King for a low-level attack on oil tanks at Rotterdam.

Merry Wanderer, three-year-old colt owned by the King, has been destroyed. The colt won the Beaiwood Nursery at Nottingham last year.

One Pitch Gives Columbus Hurler Credit For Win

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Pete Hader pitched only one ball for Columbus Redbirds Monday night, but was credited with the victory as Columbus beat Louisville Colonels 9-5 to take a 3-1 lead in the American Association playoff series.

Oscar Judd, who retired the first 12 batters to face him and who allowed only two hits in the first 6 innings, was charged with the loss.

Columbus went into the seventh inning behind 4-1 but went on a scoring spree in the seventh and eighth innings to put them one game nearer the league pennant, pushing across four runs in each frame.

Hader relieved Harry Brecheen, who started on the mound for Columbus, in the sixth inning and pitched only one ball when Louisville's third out was made on an attempted double steal. Murray Dickson finished the game for the Redbirds.

The two teams will play here again tonight in the best-of-seven series and if any other games are required they will be played at Columbus.

Final playoff:

Columbus	000 010 440	—9	14	2
Louisville	011 101 010	—5	13	0

Brecheen, Hader (7) Dickson (7) and Heath, Poland (7); Judd, Scheetz (7), Lefebvre (7), Fleming (9) and Glenn.

(Best of seven series. Columbus leads 3-1.)

Armstrong Hits Snag In Comeback

TULSA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Henry Armstrong hit a detour Monday in his comeback trail.

Fred Sommers, his manager, said what at first had appeared to be a bruised finger was a broken one and that he was asking postponement for four or five weeks of fights in Des Moines and Chicago.

Armstrong's finger was injured last week in an automobile accident.

Davis Subdues Lowly Phillies

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Curt Davis curveballed the Phillies into submission 5-0 Monday to put Brooklyn Dodgers 1½ games ahead of the idle St. Louis Cardinals in the red hot National League pennant race.

While Davis kept six Philly hits well scattered and did not permit any runner to reach third base, the Dodgers jumped on Frank Melton for four big runs in the sixth and coasted in with an easy victory.

A crowd of 8,434, making a three-day total of 62,147, saw the Dodgers finish the week-end series with a four-games-to-one edge and chalk up their 97th victory in 30 starts against the Phils this season.

With Monday's victory, the Dodgers have only four games left to play. The Cards still have six games to go.

About the only excitement yesterday, other than when eight Brooklyn players batted in the big sixth, came in the second inning when the Phils protested that Pee-wee Reese's single over third which scored Ducky Medwick with the first Dodger tally, had been foul.

The Phils long the argument but the dispute led to Heinie Mueller, utility infielder, being chased off the Phils' bench by Umpire Beans Reardon.

Davis who gave up only one base on balls—and that one an intentional pass—allied along without trouble to chalk up his 13th victory against seven defeats.

In only two innings did the Phils threaten. In the fifth May smacked a two-bagger with one away. Melton popped to Reese to end the threat.

In the ninth, singles by Stan Benjamin and Litzhilier put men on first and second with two out, but May grounded out to end the game.

GIANTS, BRAVES SPLIT

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Giants made their final appearance of the year Monday at the Polo grounds and finished up the home stand by splitting a twin bill with Boston Braves.

The New Yorkers ran their winning streak up to five in a row to take the opener 3-3 behind the steady pitching of Bowing of Carl Hubbell, who chalked up his 11th victory of the year. The Braves came back in the eighth and ninth innings of the nightcap to win that one 7-1.

In the opener, Hubbell made his last appearance of the year. He has been excused for the rest of the season to have Giant blast in the fifth inning put the game on ice for him.

Young Dave Koslo fresh up from Milwaukee, hooked up with Dick Errickson and Alva Javery, who took over in the seventh, in a tight duel in the nightcap.

Tradesmen are specially desired, but lack of technical knowledge is no impediment to enlistment, as this can be provided.

$60,000 Estimated Cost Structure For Control Increasing Air Traffic

Edmonton's city council Monday decided to call for tenders for the erection of an administration building at Edmonton's airport, and instructed the city architect to proceed with the drawing of plans for the proposed structure.

It is estimated that this building will cost approximately $60,000 and that rentals accruing from the Dominion government and air transportation companies will take care of administration, maintenance and other incidental expenses.

While plans are being drawn the city commissioners were instructed to make a survey of the possible revenue that could be obtained from rentals in the building and to bring back a report to city council at its next meeting. It is anticipated that definite action on the letting of the construction contracts will be taken at this meeting.

FACILITIES REQUIRED

Recommending the calling for tenders and preparation of the plans, the city commissioners pointed out that it is becoming increasingly evident that there is an urgent need for proper administration and waiting-room facilities at the airport.

At present, they stated in their report, the only accommodation of this nature is in No. 1 hangar, but with the continual increase in air traffic it is proving entirely inadequate. The acceleration of air traffic is such, the report continued, that it would appear imperative that the additional facilities should be provided immediately.

It was reported by City Engineer A. W Haddow that there is such a demand for space from air line operators that the proposed building would be self-sustaining from the time of erection.

NEED IS URGENT

City Commissioner John Hodgson said there were no specific funds available for this work, but the matter was of sufficient urgency that the commissioners recommended that, if the project was approved by city council, the cost be held in suspense account pending final allocation.

Ald. James H. Ogilvie suggested that assistance in the project be sought from the dominion government, and also that the government be asked to assist in the construction of the airport runways to the 6,000 yard standard, and the donation of the land now held by the Canadian National Railway which would be required for the runway extensions.

Representing the air transport companies Grant McConachie, Yukon Southern, said that the need for the administration building was urgent. Operations at the airport had now grown to such a degree that the greatest difficulty was experienced through having offices scattered all over the airport.

TRAFFIC GROWS

He pointed to the fact that Edmonton was the only airport in Canada without an administration building. He said that sufficient space could be rented to air transport companies to make the building self-supporting. Traffic through the airport daily was between 70 to 80 passengers and it was anticipated this would increase considerably when the seadrome closed down for winter operations.

THE QUESTION

On Monday Edmonton's thousands of school children went back to class rooms after a prolonged holiday period due to the polio and sleeping sickness epidemics. Here are a few comments on: "How does it feel to return to school?"

THE ANSWERS

NIP QUEST, Victoria High School: Ohhhh well . . . I suppose I have to go back, but it sure was a nice long holiday, even if there was a health ban for the extra month.

JEAN HUGHES, undecided high school student: The idea of going back to school is all right, but I didn't know which school to go back to. I've got to decide whether I want matriculation or commercial courses.

ELSIE FAIRHEAD, Eastwood high school: I'm going to try and finish my Grade 12 in one year. So I guess the sooner I start at it, the sooner I'll be through.

DOUG MITCHELL, Victoria high school: I'm moving from Eastwood to Victoria for a change. I've got a few remaining courses to clean up, so I guess going back to school will be o.k.

JOAN REDPATH, former student: Why didn't you know? . . . I'm not returning to school. As a matter of fact, I've been out of school a couple of years. How do you like returning to school?

Police Cells Brightened With Paint

* * * * * * *

In Gilded Cages At Station

"Just a bird in a gilded cage" is a line from a Gay Ninety lament. Over at the city police station all the boys will soon be able to sing that line with truth, for they'll all be "jailbirds" in a gilded cage.

What's actually happening is that the grim, black iron bars on the cell doors and windows are being given a coat of nice bright aluminum paint.

And the job of brightening up things isn't stopping with bars and gratings. All the black iron work on the banks of the cells is also being painted a bright color.

TICKLED TO DEATH

Turnkey Jim Myles is tickled to death with the new color scheme. "It had to come sooner or later, and here it is—the streamlined cell block," Turnkey Myles proclaimed proudly.

Turnkey Bill Lamb is also proud of the new decorations but is a bit worried that the next step in modernization may include ash trays for each cell and the concomitant emptying chore every few hours.

A prisoner, just ushered into the cell block because he had been looking upon the wine when its color was given to the cup, was really delighted with the color scheme.

HIS OPINION

"I always did shay that green ish a lovely color. Ish may shavorite color, I mean. I'ave wish they wouldn't keep that elephant in the corner. But it's sure a shwell place. Ishna real pleasure to be locked up here! Hic! Hic!"

"Just a bird in a gilded cage."

Fire Chief Awaits Information On Fire Fighters To Aid Britain

Fire Chief James Macgregor is awaiting further details concerning the proposal advanced in eastern Canada by Maj.-Gen. T. J. LaFleche, chief of the Canadian army general staff to recruit men from Canadian city fire departments for service in the British Isles.

"Until we receive some direct information concerning the plan, I am not able to state what will be done here in Edmonton," Chief Macgregor told the Bulletin.

Fire Marshal Jack Booth voiced regret that Edmonton did not have a representative at a recent meeting in the east of Canadian fire chiefs and fire marshals, where the question of enlisting men for fighting fires in Britain occasioned by incendiary bombs had been discussed.

"I feel certain there are firemen here who would like to enlist for fighting bomb fires in Britain," Chief Macgregor said.

The chief felt that firemen enlisting for fighting bomb fires would require special training that would probably be given before they left Canada.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King had stated in an address since his return from Britain that Canadian firemen will be recruited for fighting fires in Britain.

Liberals To Discuss Plans At City Meet

A Liberal Party meeting at which preparations for the provincial conference are expected to be completed will be held in the I.O.O.F. hall, 103 street, at 8 p.m. Wednesday, according to officials of the Alberta conference council of the party.

Purpose of the meeting chiefly is to select sufficient delegates from the city to equalize Edmonton's representation at the conference with the other rural constituencies. Edmonton is a multiple constituency with five members in the provincial legislature. It is therefore entitled to five times the number of delegates from each rural constituency.

PARTY PLANS

Object of the conference will be to discuss the future plans of the party in view of the resignation of the former provincial leader, R. L. Gray, who accepted a government appointment.

The conference will also set a date for a province-wide Liberal convention at which a provincial platform will be drafted, a provincial leader selected and reorganization of the provincial Liberal Party dealt with.

DELEGATES

Representatives from the several branches of the Liberal Party will be present at the conference in Calgary. From Edmonton and Northern Alberta the following are expected to attend:

Three regional vice-presidents, Mrs Marion Conroy, Edmonton; Mrs. J. P. Ferguson, Trochu, and Walter Bissell, Viking; northern members of the Alberta conference, Ruth Montgomery, Wetaskiwin, Nellie V. Buchanan, K.C., and Edward C. Fisher, of Edmonton; Peter Miller, president of the Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association; George Parney, president of the West Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association; Pat O'Connor, president of the East Edmonton Federal Liberal Association; Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, and Hon. Jas. A. MacKinnon, federal members for the two Edmonton ridings, and George Bryan, secretary of the Alberta Liberal Association.

Added to the list of officials will be all Liberal candidates in the last provincial and federal elections and presidents of all provincial and federal ridings.

The meeting called for Wednesday night will select sufficient delegates. Peter Miller will preside and C. H. Green, K.C., will be secretary of the meeting.

Getting Around with JOHN OLIVER

AS September enters the final week of her contribution to the year 1941, one cannot refrain from coming to the conclusion that the conduct of this usually lovely month has been most unbecoming. With the exception of a few days, or parts thereof, spotted at irregular intervals, this has been a cold, cheerless and unseasonal division of the year.

September usually is calm, gracious, golden, basking in a sun that steeps the entire body with a charmed warmth as of some celestial cordial. The sky as a rule is stainless blue. Morning is cool and night may be chilly, but the in-between period is enchanting and conducive to rest in this year of grace, our charming month so far has been anything but. It is expected of it. There are some signs that a general improvement is at hand. However, to quote the oft-repeated saying of Charles Dudley Warner, regularly laid on Mark Twain's doorstep, all we can do about the weather is to talk about it.

Nevertheless, the early visitation of cooler weather is not without its advantages. It has been noted that fall work in and around homes has been advanced far beyond that usually reached at this time of the year. For instance, many double windows have been put on, while storm doors are by no means an uncommon sight. Taking off the screens and putting on the outer windows, is an operation frequently left until much later. Then the gas man has been summoned earlier than usual to see that everything in the furnace is in good working order. The inspector this observer consulted, uncovered the information that there is a long waiting list for such assistance.

Passing a large apartment block on 100 Avenue, I noticed a workman on a platform suspended from the roof, using a "gun" to "shoot" plaster in between bricks to replace portions which had fallen by time. Motorists are also waiting for the service stations to get anti-freeze put in their radiators, as the slight nocturnal frosts over the week-end gave notice that trouble was just around the corner if this was not done.

Many residents have been noticed in their gardens raking leaves and transplanting bulbs. Fur and other winter coats have appeared on clothes-lines getting a good airing before being worn. Houses wherein coal-burning furnaces are installed, are being stocked with fuel. Pianos are being tuned for the children's long winter practice sessions. Warm garments are being purchased and in general, the burghers are leaving their thoughts and intentions for winter. A customary warm September, such as that of last year, would not have resulted in such a large amount of preliminary work being completed.

Winter is not yet here. There will be much good weather before we are "snowed in." We can look forward to October and November in the hope and expectation of enjoying that period of pleasant, mild weather, with hazy atmosphere lining the horizon and a clear sky known as Indian Summer. The term dates from 1750 and although of American origin is now used in England and corresponds to the English St. Luke's or St. Martin's summer. Horace Walpole used the expression in 1778 in reference to tropical weather. Here's hoping we get some in Alberta.

Freshmen Appear In Green-Gold Caps

* * * * * * *

Those green - and - gold airforce caps and sailor hats that are being worn around city streets by blushing boys and smiling girls mean only one thing — freshman registration at the University of Alberta.

Long before the official start of registration of the 1941-42 Frosh class at 9 a.m. in Convocation hall, groups of future undergraduate students were lining up. Already 328 applicants have been admitted as first-year students, but officials expected many more would present themselves with proper qualifications during registration later Tuesday. A total of 456 students registered in first-year classes last year.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURE

Registration sequence includes presentation of admittance cards, showing of national registration cards, consultation with faculty advisors regarding courses, arranging timetables, signing for military training, physical and psychological examinations, a medical.

Before the "freshie" gets too bewildered by all this procedure, a student freshman introduction committee, under the direction of Ben King of Claresholm, starts the new student on a week of social-acquaintance functions.

Out-of-town students, without board or lodging in the city, found a students' lodging committee, under the chairmanship of Bob Macbeth, president of the students' union, ready to help them.

Registration of all other students in the faculty of arts starts on Wednesday, followed by registration of all other students in the faculties of medicine, agriculture, applied science, and law on Thursday.

Lectures in all courses start on Friday.

Training For Cadet League Opens Thursday

Edmonton unit of the Air Cadet League of Canada is expected to start on its complete training plan next Thursday, according to J. H. Wildman, chairman of the local committee in charge of the air cadet plan. "Prospective cadets will be given the first few days of this week to get organized for school and the complete cadet enrollment plan will start probably Thursday," Mr. Wildman said.

Applications are still being received from prospective cadets between the ages of 15 and 17 years, at the unit's local headquarters in room 31, Prince of Wales armories. Office hours are from 4 to 6 p.m. and from 7 to 8 p.m.

Those boys already sworn in will be required to complete their medical examination before being fully enrolled and ready for training.

Health regulation banning persons under 17 years of age from congregating has held up organization plans of the cadet league here.

All applicants who will be required for awearing in or medical examination purposes this week are being notified by mail.

Ada Crockett, Louis C. Day Are Married

A bride in a filmy white picture gown preceded by three attendants in gowns of petal pink, mist blue and buttercup yellow, respectively was Ada Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Crockett of Edmonton when she pledged vows at a pretty service on Saturday evening with Louis Charles Day, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Day, also of this city.

Setting for the ceremony was St. Faith's church which was attractively decorated with bouquets of early autumn blossoms for the occasion. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. N. Nainby.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length frock of delicate white chiffon fashioned with bishop sleeves featuring silver smocking at yolk and on the cuffs. Tiny covered buttons marked the back of her frock from the softly rounded neckline to the full bouffant skirt. A full length veil of silk embroidered net was held by her head with a coronet of orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a gold locket, the gift of the bridegroom. Her bouquet was a shower bouquet of deep red roses.

Sister of the bride, Miss Vera Crockett, was a charming maid of honor wearing a floor-length gown of mist blue sheer accented with a jacket of silver-quilted satin. Her frock featured short puffed sleeves, a low-cut neckline and full skirt. Silver slippers, a tiny Bo-Peep hat of matching point d'esprit marked with silver bows and an arm bouquet of pale pink gladioli completed her ensemble.

BRIDESMAIDS

Miss Dorothy Arnold and Miss Nellie Howe, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore petal pink taffeta designed with fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. A sweetheart neckline and puffed sleeves were interesting details of her frock with which she wore a pink Bo-Peep hat accented with bows of black velvet and matching pink and mauve sweet peas in a Victorian bouquet. Miss How was gowned in yellow taffeta fashioned floor length with sweeping skirt, puffed sleeves and a square neckline edged with pale green velvet. Her hat was in Bo-Peep style and was marked with green velvet bows. She carried a Victorian bouquet of mauve sweet peas.

Mr. Steven Kruger attended the bridegroom as best man. Mr. Maclean Walker and Mr. William Kerr ushered guests to their ribbon and flower marked pews.

Wedding music was supplied by Mrs. E. Holtsman and during the signing of the register, sung by the bride, Mrs. A. L. How, gave a delightful solo.

Owing to a recent bereavement in the bride's family, reception only to the bridal party was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents. Mrs. Crockett received wearing an afternoon frock of slate blue crepe accented with navy accessories and a shoulder corsage of pale pink roses. Mrs. Day chose an afternoon frock of rose crepe with which she wore black accessories and deep pink roses en corsage.

The bride's table was laid with a madeira cloth and centred with a wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Day will make their home in Edmonton at 11605 96A street.

Veteran Newspaperwoman Marks Her 80th Birthday This Month

WINNIPEG, Sept. 23—Dr. E. Cora Hind, for a great many years agricultural editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, and a valued member of the Free Press staff, attained her 80th birthday Thursday last, amid the well wishes of a host of friends and admirers.

Hundreds of pages of clippings from the Free Press and many papers and magazines published in all parts of the world, on file in the Free Press library, testify to the energy of Miss Hind's journalistic activities over a period of 60 years.

And she is still carrying on with enthusiasm, still devoted to the tasks which in their accomplishment have recorded and interpreted the epic development of the agricultural prairie west.

GREATEST SATISFACTION

Many honors have been bestowed on E. Cora Hind, especially during the past decade, in recognition of her services and achievements. It is a safe bet to say, however, that her greatest satisfaction in life has been in doing the hard work which has won her renown as an authority in agriculture, especially as a judge of livestock, and an accurate estimator of the probable yield of growing grain.

The mileage she has covered across the prairies in preparation for making crop reports is probably incalculable. A glance at the record of her crop inspection trip in one summer is typical. In two months she drove criss-cross highways across the prairie provinces, covered 8,500 miles—1,300 miles by motor and horse and 7,000 miles by rail.

During such journeys she has visited countless grain fields, and the Free Press crop yield estimates based on this work attracted increasing attention as their trustworthy character was proven by results.

Her real and authoritative knowledge won her respectful attention when she visited London where she never lost an opportunity to promote the marketing of Canadian farm products. An example of this was an address she made in London in May, 1922, in which she pulled down the lid on calling upon the government to implement a promise to lift the embargo on Canadian cattle. Her speech was reported in full in The Times.

Within the past 10 years Miss Hind has undertaken some of her most important activity. Crowning years of support of the Hudson Bay outlet route for shipping western products overseas, she sailed from Churchill in the fall of 1932 on a ship carrying cattle to Britain, in a demonstration of her faith in that route. In a despatch to the Free Press upon her arrival in the historic port of Bristol, she emphasized the smooth even speed of the vessel when it sailed through the Hudson strait, so maligned by the medical detractors of the Hudson Bay route.

WROTE OF VARIED LANDS

In 1937 Miss Hind returned from a two-year trip around the world by ship, rail and plane during which she wrote extensively for the Free Press of agriculture in many varied lands, her observations dealing with such contrasted subjects as collective farms in Russia, horse breeding in Hungary and wheat production in Argentina.

At the end of the world tour Miss Hind wrote a book summing up her main observations and experiences called, "Round Myself," a title that aptly expressed her attitude toward all her work, whether collecting crop yield or reporting on the live stock judging at the Royal Winter Fair.

Upon her return a prized honor came to her when she visited the floor of the Winnipeg grain exchange where a trading record as she was presented with a perpetual pass to the trading floor. The following spring, 30 years after she joined the Free Press staff, she was given the honorary degree of doctor of laws at the convocation of the University of Manitoba.

Today as in the last war Miss Hind busily knits things for the Canadian soldiers overseas, and as a leader in the activities of Free Press women employees in providing boxes of comforts for the troops.

Kellogg's BRAN FLAKES

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix: This morning I received three letters in the same mail. In one of them a woman whom I have not seen for years calmly announced that she would like to come and spend a week with me as she wanted to have some dental work done and do some shopping, and that she would like to bring her 7-year-old boy with her. In the second letter a woman who said she met me at a convention in Hamilton last year stated that she was on her way to Winnipeg, and that as she had always wanted to visit the city I live in she would like to stop off and spend a few days with me.

Dorothy Dix

In the third letter another woman wrote that she and a friend were making an automobile trip through the country, and that she would like so much to have her friend and me meet each other as she was sure we would be so congenial, and that she was planning on spending a couple of days with me, and that I might expect them the early part of the next week. Now my husband and I are people in very moderate circumstances. We live in a small apartment with no guest room, and it takes close planning of our meals to enable us to live within our budget, hence we cannot afford to feed these people and take them around as they would expect. We are under no obligations whatever to any of them. What shall we do about these self-invited guests? MRS. A. C.

Answer: Why, I think that is the easiest problem in the world to solve. If they have the nerve to invite themselves to your house, you have the nerve to refuse to receive them. Wire them that it will be impossible for you to entertain them and don't make excuses. Don't say you are sorry. Just slap them in the face with a rudeness equal to their own. Such people don't understand decency and you have to talk to them in their own language.

There are no other household pests so common or so difficult to exterminate as the self-invited guests. Practically all of us suffer from them, and it shows what poor, weak, spineless cowards we are that we put up with them instead of using rough-on-rats or some other drastic remedy for freeing ourselves of them.

These people are, one and all, nothing but racketeers who are stealing a hotel bill by staying on us, no matter at what inconvenience to us, nor how little we can afford to have them. And, as I said before, if we had the slightest intestinal fortitude we wouldn't stand for it. Being cowards, we probably deserve what we get when we see our own vacations sacrificed to give them one, and our new hats going down their greedy throats.

DOROTHY DIX.

What To Do

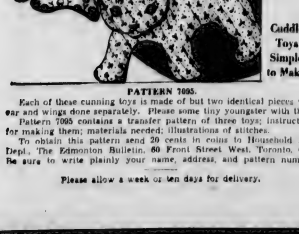

I frequently make appointments to go to dinner directly from the office and am in doubt about what kind of a dress to wear. If I wear my fussier clothes they don't look well in the office, and the tailored office clothes are too plain for a dress-up occasion.

Answer—Try a plain, well-cut, conservative black dress of crepe. Wear white pique collar and cuffs to the office—but bring along a dress-up set of collars and cuffs, perhaps in metal cloth, or embroidered in beads or sequins. When your day's work is through put the fancy trimming on your dress and a perky little "dinner hat" (that you've carried to work with you), a clean, fresh pair of white gloves, and you're ready.

Another serviceable type of dress is the jacket dress. Perhaps the jacket is of sequins and the dress perfectly plain. Just don't wear your jacket in the office. On the other hand, the dress and jacket may give a very tailored effect, in which case don't wear the jacket to dinner, but pin a fancy jeweled clip on your lapel. Dress, which, no doubt, has short sleeves, and you have a dressed-up appearance.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

If the bulk of your weight is gathered at the midsection, it's plain to be seen that you need exercise—and you don't need a tape measure to confirm that! Probably you will want to trim several inches off your waistline and to tone, firm and flatten your abdominal girdle.

With this portion of the figure particularly it is a mistake to think that exercise must be felt to be effective. Many of the showy, difficult exercises, such as lying on the back and slowly raising and lowering both legs off the floor, or standing and bending over to touch the floor while keeping knees straight, are not worth the effort.

Maureen O'Hara, screen favorite, perfectly illustrates one of the fastest streamlining exercises you can take—if you can take it. Try coming up from prone position on floor to sitting position, then bending to touch outstretched hands to toes.

Easy exercises which involve a simple stretch or a contractile movement look easy and usually are, but they are also highly efficient in streamlining the midriff. Any woman who will do a set of these exercises every day can soon bring her waistline to trim and acquire a firm muscular girdle. Try these:

Position: Lying on back on floor, stretched to full length with legs straight down and arms on floor overhead.

Movement: Stretch right leg across left, and touch toes to floor on far side. Hold while you give an extra tug and stretch to the midriff muscles. Relax, then stretch left leg across right, with toes on floor beyond. You will discover that that exercise makes you feel better even while you are doing it. Repeat six times, later 12, relaxing between stretches.

Position: Same, stretched to full extension.

Movement: Flex the right knee and bring thigh up toward the chest. As you do this, dig the small of the back into the floor. Hold for a second, straighten right leg and repeat with left. Perform slowly for 12 counts. As you get into condition increase the number of times to 24, later to 50.

Relax completely but remain in the same startling position for the third exercise.

Movement: Flex right knee, twist vigorously at waist, and touch kneepoint to floor at left side. Alternate knees for eight counts, later on 25, and still later for 50.

In this final exercise, lie on back with arms stretched up on floor overhead and legs straight down. The movement is harder than the others and at first you may find it helps to anchor your feet under a heavy chair or chest of drawers. The exercise is simply to come up to sitting position, give a thorough upstretch through the midsection, then bend over and try to touch fingers to toes. Three times will be enough for a starter. Gradually increase to 15.

Everyone needs exercise of this kind. This series is especially designed to slim the waist, strengthen the abdominal muscles, and to combat that bugaboo of middle age, faulty elimination.

Warm Bright Hooked Rug You'll Have Fun Making

Material Can Be Old Clothing

Great-grandma made them—but colorful hand-hooked rugs are "newer" now than ever!

And it's smarter than ever to make your own—cleverly using your discarded clothing. The making is easy and fun! You begin by tying or nailing together a rug-sized frame and tacking to it the burlap base on which you hook.

Cut fabric (wool preferred) into strips about 1-3 inch wide; and go a-begging if you haven't the color combination you want! Mrs. Jones may have just the rose to go with your gray.

With a cup and saucer it's simple to trace on the burlap the pattern our sketch shows.

The hooking itself is fun. Hold strip of fabric under burlap with left hand and with right hand thrust hook through burlap, catch strip and pull above surface in a ½-inch loop. Repeat every few threads, keeping loops even. Quickly the bright woolly rug grows under your fingers!

Our 32-page booklet describes in detail the making of this and other pretty hooked rugs. Also tells how to make braided, woven, crocheted rugs, novel styles.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "How To Make Your Own Rugs" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service Department, 60 Front St. West, Toronto, Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and the Name of Booklet.

Please allow a week or ten days for delivery.

Tricolor Accent On Smock

Artist or housewife, you'll appreciate the way a pretty smock keeps your clothes clean! Pattern 4887 by Anne Adams is designed essentially for utility but the tricolor pockets are a striking decorative note. The large square pockets of the same shade as the smock have two smaller squares of different colors stitched down on top. Long bishop sleeves and the gathered yokes in the back and front give you action room. Another version is equally smart: the Peter Pan collar is omitted, the smock has short sleeves and is made in a shorter length. Specially recommended to trim the yoke, sleeves, and pockets—and just for fun there's a little hankie pocket on the sleeve. Both versions are easy to make, with the Sewing Instructor to help.

Pattern 4887 is available in sizes small (32-34), medium (36-38), and large (40-42). Small size takes 3¼ yards 35-inch fabric.

Send 20 cents in coins for the Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly your name, address and the number of the pattern desired. Address your order to The Edmonton Bulletin, Pattern Department, 60 Front St. West, Toronto, Ontario.

Please allow a week or 10 days for delivery.

McCoy Health Service

When Dr. Frank McCoy first advocated the use of whole wheat bread, with the total restriction of white bread in the diet, he was roundly condemned by his colleagues as a food fadist, and a crackpot. More especially in the past five years, food scientists and nutritionists have come around to Dr. McCoy's way of thinking, and it is now universally agreed upon by the best authorities that plain white bread, which has been denuded of the wheat germ and the mineral salts in the refining process of the flour, has little food value, excepting from the starch content which is an energy producer.

The result is that the governments of many countries have in the last two years, passed laws which provide that when white bread is baked a sufficient amount of the vitamin B and mineral salts be added to the white flour to make up for the deficiency caused by the milling process. In other words, during the milling process the vitamins and mineral salts are removed, leaving the plain white flour, which is white in color and has little of the food value of the whole wheat.

The next step in baking is to add synthetic Vitamin B, lime and iron to this white flour, and it is then ready to be used for the making of white bread. All of this can be avoided by using the whole meal which contains the natural vitamins and mineral salts so necessary for life and there is little question that these natural elements are far superior to the synthetic variety.

It seems that since the public, or some of the public, demand white bread, the idea is to let them have it, but to see to it at the same time, that they get their vitamins and mineral salts, whether they want them or not.

Some people seem to think that whole bread is less fattening, or contains less starch than the bread made from white flour, but such is not the case. The starch content of both is approximately the same.

When bread, buns, rolls, or any baked product is made from flour, it should not be used unless cut in thin slices and toasted carefully in the oven. In this manner the starch is converted into dextrose, rendering it much more easily digested and less likely to cause fermentation in the intestinal tract. When bread is cut in thin slices and prepared in this way, it is called Melba toast, and products in this toasted form are most nourishing carbonhydrate foods, being entirely changed from the original starchy form.

Those of my readers who would like to have further information on the subject are invited to send for Dr. Frank McCoy's special articles entitled "Bread the Staff of Life." Just address your request to the McCoy Health Service, enclosing a large self-addressed envelope and six cents in stamps, to cover postage and mailing.

All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service in care of this paper.

Basso's Spaghetti Recipes His Best Libretti

MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Spaghetti with meat sauce is an international favorite, and Ezio Pinza, handsome basso of the Metropolitan Opera company, gives his favorite recipe. "It's a slight variation of the one my mother used in Italy," he says. "Cook the sauce four hours to give it that wonderful Old World flavor. Better make your own spaghetti noodles, too. Takes only five minutes."

Pinza

MEAT BALLS
(Serves 8)

Two pounds chopped meat, preferably mixed ground beef and pork, 1 cup stale bread crumbs, 4 beaten eggs, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, ¼ cup olive oil.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE

Two minced onions, 2 cloves of garlic, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 2 small cans tomato paste, 1 bay leaf, salt and pepper.

Mix the ground meat together with the stale bread crumbs, parsley, beaten eggs and seasoning. Shape into small balls and fry quickly in olive oil. Remove, put onions and garlic (chopped fine) in oil, fry until brown. Then add the tomato, tomato paste, and bay leaf. Cook on low fire for about three hours, adding a little water when needed. An hour before serving put meat balls into sauce and cook until ready to serve.

Another favorite recipe of the famous Metropolitan singer is corn chowder.

CORN CHOWDER
(Serves 8)

Two ounces salt pork, diced; 1 small onion, sliced; 1 No. 2 can corn or 2½ cups cooked fresh corn, 2 cups diced potatoes, 1½ cups raw or canned tomatoes, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 4 cups boiling water, 1 cup hot milk, crackers.

Fry pork golden brown; add onion and cook without browning 5 minutes. Add vegetables in layers, sprinkle with sugar and seasonings; add water and cook slowly until potatoes are tender. Remove from heat and slowly stir in milk. Place crackers in cold soup plates and pour in chowder.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Melon, parsley omelet, whole-wheat toast, jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Corn chowder, salted crackers, applesauce, gingerbread, tea, milk.

DINNER: Spaghetti noodles with Italian meat balls, mixed greens salad, crisp Italian bread, chilled stewed pears, coffee, milk.

Met basso Ezio Pinza commandeers the kitchen for spaghetti feast.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Yesterday, we described the kind of breakfast mothers would enjoy seeing their school children consume. The real hitch is to get them to eat it. Appetites are variable in the mornings and some children cannot look at food without distaste.

It does help a little to offer fruit juices early in the morning, for once the stomach has begun to pour out its own digestive juices the probability is that food will look more enticing. So a glass of clear fruit juice when the children arise may make it possible for them to down their solid foods after they have spent some time dressing.

Another help for tempting appetites is to send the children outdoors for a brisk walk or a run in the cool air and then bring them in to the table. Going from bed to table often is such a poor preliminary to eating that children turn down foods that they will be wishing for an hour later.

There is in all children the nagging fear that they may be late to school. For that reason, the conscientious child is oftener inspired to curtail the eating of breakfast than those children who act as if they didn't care. Adjustment of the rising hour so that children, no matter what their speed of dressing, will have ample time for all their pre-school obligations, will do a lot to help them enjoy breakfast because they can see that they have time for it.

There should be a calm, unagitated attitude on the part of the parent. To nag the child about eating, to give worried looks at the clock, is sure to communicate that uneasiness to the child and rob him of the desire to consume what is before him.

And while breakfast undoubtedly is the meal which is put together in the least possible time, it needn't be a sloppy meal nor an uninteresting one if the parent will plan her breakfast down to the last detail, preparing as much as she can the night before, even to setting the table with attractive china and colorful cloths and napkins.

The appearance of attractively prepared food sets up those inner demands for it which we translate as appetite. With some little effort, breakfast should be, for all members of the family, the best-liked meal of the day.

Our leaflet, "Meals For the School Child", suggests not only breakfast menus, but ideas for the lunch box as well. A copy will be sent to you free if you will write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing with your request for the leaflet a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for return mailing.

Province's Honey Production Is Up

Alberta's 1941 honey production totalled more than 3,000,000 pounds according to figures released Tuesday by officials of the provincial department of agriculture. This is a 20 per cent increase over the 1940 output and is due to additional interest in beekeeping during the last three years, rather than the result of a high average production per hive.

A large part of the increase in beekeeping is amongst farmers who are producing honey for their own use. This is in contrast to the early development of beekeeping, which was largely amongst specialists who were producing honey on a commercial scale. Commercial honey production, nevertheless, has also been expanded somewhat in the last three years.

The season promised to be extremely favorable and the honey flow was heavy in the early part of the summer. Unfortunately, officials stated, the advent of the bee web worm, which in many heavy producing areas, ended the main flow of nectar prematurely. These moths appeared in such numbers that they removed the nectar almost completely for 10 days.

After the moths died, the season was so well advanced that only a light flow remained for the year. The average production per hive was not much more than normal.

Zoning Laws To Be Probed In Edmonton

Survey to determine the extent to which the one-family dwelling zoning bylaws has been modified by special application, and also to determine the number of evasions of this bylaw will be undertaken by city commissioners.

The survey will be made following passage by city council Monday of a resolution by Ald. A. Bisset, which was made following consideration of complaint by W. K. Porter, 11240 126 street, concerning his prosecution under the bylaw for evasion of the one-family zoning regulation. It was reported he had changed the dwelling into four suites, contrary to the bylaw.

Ald. Bisset said there appeared to be discrimination, through no fault of the zoning commission, in the granting of modifications in the one-family zones.

DEPRESSION IS CAUSE

He added that the modifications came through the economic force of the depression. Many persons faced the loss of their property unless permitted to use their dwellings as multiple houses.

He pointed out also that a serious situation would result in the Garneau and other districts adjacent to the University when students were enrolled this year. Residences at the university, he said, were now occupied by the R.C.A.F. and students would have to find accommodation in private homes. It would possibly necessitate a modification in the one-family dwelling regulations.

Just A Boy Named Johnny Brown . . . Canuck Dynamiters Get Results In Spitsbergen

It is quite possible that when the last bomb has razed the last home and peace is declared, no history book will record the name of Johnny Brown, an English schoolboy who is only 14 years of age. Although Nazi air raids have diminished considerably in frequency and intensity, they still occur from time to time. Johnny Brown was away from home, but heard the bombs dropping. Fearful for the safety of his sister, he rushed home. His house was still standing, but Johnny pitched in and helped salvage the possessions of neighbors. Here he stands, grimy and tired, holding in his arms one torn vest, four books and a pair of shoes that will look like new once the brick dust is cleaned from them.

YOURS FOR A WHILE

BY LOUISE HOLMES

The BROOKS family has been broken up when JOHN is taken to the veterans hospital, where he is learned his leg must be amputated. MRS. BROOKS is working at the hospital; CHRISTIE, their daughter, is working for JACK RAMSEY in his cafe. Christie long has planned to marry SAM SIMPSON, real estate man, but has been interested in GRAY TALBOT, a young man who has decided plumbing is a good business. Gray has asked Christie to go to the policeman's ball with him. Of course, she must go with Sam, but she knows he won't want to go. She asks him anyway. He agrees to do it and Christie is thrilled. Shortly before time for the ball, Sam calls to tell her he has a splitting headache and can't go. Remembering Gray's offer that she call him if she can go with him, she tries. Unable to reach him on the phone, she calls a cab. At Gray's apartment, she finds him ready to take her to the ball. They have a gay time and are on their way home at 4 a.m. Gray offers Christie fatherly advice, then kisses her good night. She realizes she loves him and tells Sam so the next night. Then begins all their engagement. That night Christie's mother calls to tell her that her father is worse, will be operated on in the morning. After the operation, he loses strength and Christie offers to provide blood for a transfusion. Her blood is not the right type. Gray offers his which turns out to be right. Christie and Gray declare their love and plan marriage, but he still doesn't want his family in California to know. After being married for a year, Gray comes home and finds Christie sick. He is relieved when he learns that she is not going to have a baby. Many other incidents lead her to believe that Gray is making every effort to avoid establishing a home, being tied down. Gray receives word that his father died. In a sort of stupor, he packs nearly all his belongings and goes home, leaving his wife behind.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

FOR the first few days after Gray had gone Christie remained in the apartment, each hour a day of agony. Going about the regular routine of her housekeeping, she would find herself planning Gray's favorite meals.

She would stop short, thinking, "This can't be true. Gray hasn't gone. He'll whistle and come running up the stairs any minute now." The confident mood would pass, terror claiming her again.

Ha going had been so strange. Any other husband would have taken his young wife with him. Any other husband would have needed the comfort of his wife. If Gray could not afford to take her he should have explained. Even if he had not explained he could have said, "I'll hurry right back, darlide." But he hadn't said anything like that.

On the third day Christie was listlessly dusting the bedroom. She was so deep in gloom that she cried out when, upon opening the drawer where Gray had kept his ties, she discovered a telegram and a pile of bills. The wire was from his grandmother. It read, "Your father passed away this morning. Heart attack. Come at once. Mother prostrated. Wiring $100 Western Union."

MONEY

Christie's knees gave way and she sat down on the bed, the yellow slip in one hand, the bills in the other. So Gray had divided his money with her. Why hadn't he given it to her? Why had he left it in the drawer? It made Christie think of something painful, something about men leaving money on the mantel. Hot color burned her cheeks.

"Oh, Gray," she moaned, "I'm your wife—I'm your wife."

Another startling fact, overlooked until then, occurred to her. Gray had left no address behind him. If Christie wanted to reach him she could not. He lived in the foothills of Santa Rio, California. No mail would find him addressed thus. He had not wanted her to know of his exact whereabouts? Her mind went around and around in the same frantic ruts until her senses refused to obey.

After several days of this her naturally cheerful spirit reasserted itself and she began to rationalize the situation. Love for Gray, and faith in him, rose above the turbulence of her doubts.

Her depression lightened as she assured herself that he had been stunned by the news of his father's death, that his strange behavior had not been intentional, merely the result of shock. Men did not leave their wives like that. There had to be a reason. Without a doubt, by this time, Gray was wanting her, wishing that he had taken her with him. In a day or two she would receive a letter telling her so.

He would return soon or send for her. Remembering his love and tenderness, she was so certain of her conclusions as to deride herself for having been an idiot. When Maybelle Jones called to suggest a picnic she was able to tell of Gray's sudden trip with the complaisancy of a beloved wife.

"Why don't you go to him?" Maybelle asked after expressing sympathy.

"Oh, he'll be coming back so soon—it's a hard drive—he doesn't want me to meet his family at a time like this." All these excuses had been evolved in Christie's teeming thoughts. She added, "If he is detained for any reason he'll send for me."

WISHFUL FIBS

Having told Maybelle the wishful little fibs, she accepted them as facts. With a heart almost light, she went to her father and mother.

"Gray has gone to California," she announced when they were all seated on the hospital lawn.

"He has?" Mom asked interestedly. "Why did he go?" John turned in his chair.

"His father died very suddenly. Gray had a wire from his grandmother."

"Oh, that's too bad." Mom made the comment and it was echoed by John. She added, "Maybe we'd better send flowers. It would be a nice friendly gesture. I wonder how much it costs to telegraph flowers."

Christie wriggled uneasily. She had never admitted to her fond parents that Gray had kept their marriage a secret from his family. "I'm afraid it's too late," she faltered. "You see, Gray got the news five days ago."

"And you didn't tell us?" Mom spoke sharply, John watched his daughter's face with anxious eyes.

She looked down at her hands, saying, "I didn't tell anyone. I felt so badly for Gray and I missed him so."

"What does he write?" Mom demanded.

"There hasn't been time for a letter yet." Christie did not confide that she had waited daily for the postman, only to be sick with disappointment after each delivery. She was sitting on the grass beside her father. He laid a hand on her curly head.

"Don't be unhappy," he said. "A month from now you will have forgotten that Gray was ever away."

"Of course," she smiled. "What's the good word about you?"

JOHN IS WORKING

He had news and told it with great pride. "Your old man is on the payroll again."

"Isn't that wonderful, Christie?" Mom put in brightly.

"Tell me about it—what do you mean?"

"Well, I've been given a job in the office. My old work—accounting—a sitting down job." He laughed, pleased.

Christie stood on her knees to hug him. "That's the very best news I've heard in many a day," she trilled. "Are you sure you can stand it?"

"Sure," he boasted. "Strong as an ox. To tell the truth I'm only swell to be doing something."

working three hours a day but it's

They talked until dinner time when Christie went back to her empty apartment. She waited a moment before putting her key in the lock, knowing that loneliness would crawl over her in a suffocating flood when she went inside. The days were endurable, but the evenings—

A LETTER

Gray had been gone two weeks when Christie received a letter. Her courage had died and been born again many times in those two weeks. By the time the letter arrived she was so shaken with fear defeated that the sight of his familiar handwriting threw her into stifled hysterics.

She lay on the couch, the letter held to her cheek, crying and moaning, afraid to open the envelope. When she finally did open it a cheque fluttered to the floor. She let it go, hungry eyes on the few lines Gray had written.

"Christie darling: I haven't had a moment to write to you. Found mother very ill and each moment has been crowded with things to be done. Father left his affairs in good shape but there are many of them and they are all strange to me. Had I been a good son and remained at home I would now be better able to handle the many problems."

Christie read this paragraph over. It presented many questions and few answers. How ill was his mother? Why were the affairs of a ranch owner so complicated? And did that note of self blame mean that Gray regretted the past years—and her? She read hurriedly on.

"Am enclosing a cheque for five hundred dollars. Buy the things you have always wanted. More will follow. If you'd like to furnish an apartment—why not? Remember me to Father and Mother Brooks."

It was signed, "Gray," simply that.

Christie could not believe that the letter had ended. No word of love, no hint that he missed her, no mention of his return. She read it again and again, finding but one shred of comfort, and that dubious. He had said that she might furnish an apartment.

Surely that must mean— She wasn't at all sure what it meant. Was she to have her way now that it did not involve him? She looked with disdain on the cheque, more money than she had ever seen at one time. Anger flared in the ashes of her heart.

"I'll bank it," she thought, smoothing the cheque between her fingers. "If Gray comes back, we'll spend it together. If he doesn't come back I don't want it."

There, she had put into thoughts the thing from which she had been shrinking since the day when Gray went away. "If Gray comes back—" It represented a change in Christie.

McKenney On Bridge

By Wm. E. McKENNEY, America's Card Authority

The discussions at a national bridge tournament might confuse a beginner at contract. Take for example today's hand, which came up during the mixed team-of-four championship. I heard Mrs. McKenney discuss this hand with Harry J. Fishbein of New York, who finished third in the world championship Masters Pair event this year, and won that title last year and the year before.

South's opening bid of one spade was passed by Fishbein, who sat West. When North passed, Mrs. McKenney in the East position also passed. Now the discussion began. Fishbein said, "Not vulnerable and with vulnerable opponents, I think you should have kept the bidding open."

When Mrs. McKenney brought the hand to me, I said that I would have bid two clubs if I were playing with Fishbein against vulnerable opponents, as I know he is inclined to trap in that situation.

Then Mrs. McKenney took the hand to Waldemar von Zedtwitz, rated one of the world's greatest players, and he was just as emphatic that the correct thing to do was to pass. Von Zedtwitz is known as a light bidder who will keep the bidding open if he can find any justification for doing so.

You will admit there isn't much in the East hand, but also note that if East does keep the bidding open, East and West will have no trouble at all making five clubs, and with careful play six can be made. So it does seem rather tough to pass a hand out at one spade on which six clubs can be made.

Can you figure out how South made two spades on this hand? He did it by trumping the second diamond and leading a small spade toward the eight. West played low and as a result made only two spade tricks.

Citizens Urge Province Build Museum Here

Establishment of a provincial museum was urged upon the provincial government by a citizens' delegation which interviewed Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, Monday.

It was urged that there are many historical articles which should be preserved and that unless there is some suitable provision for preserving them they will gradually be dispersed and may be lost. Among the articles are many pictures featured in the collection of Ernest Brown, pioneer Edmonton photographer.

The delegation was headed by John Blue, secretary of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce.

Commenting on the representations, Mr. Fallow stated that the government, for some time, has been anxious to make a start on a provincial museum and to erect a building for the purpose.

MONEY NOT AVAILABLE

"We have been trying to make it possible to establish such a museum, but war conditions and the difficulty of obtaining the necessary funds made it impossible up to the present," said Mr. Fallow.

It was realized that the historic collection of pictures and other treasures which had formed the subject of the delegation's representations should be preserved and already he had become aware of public feeling to this effect, he added.

He pointed out that a fairly large building would be required to house the collection and it might be necessary to construct it by stages, if units.

For some time the collection was stored in the basement of the provincial Normal school on the South Side, but when the building was taken over by the Dominion national defence department for use in the Commonwealth Air Training plan, a new home had to be found.

GOVERNMENT ANXIOUS

"It is a matter of money," said Mr. Fallow. "The government is anxious to make a start on a provincial building. This historic collection must be preserved and it means a lot to this province. The value of it cannot be measured in dollars and in fact some of these rare relics already have been lost to the province."

Interviewing Hon. Mr. Fallow were: M. J. Hilton, principal of the Technical school; A. W. Haddow, city engineer; N. B. James, M.L.A.; G. A. Clayton, Edmonton Teachers' Association; Miss Margaret Perry, Separate School Teachers' Association; Ernest Brown, museum owner; Miss Gladys Reeves, partner with Mr. Brown in the museum; John Blue, secretary of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, and T. J. Rogness, secretary of the Alberta Pensioners' Society.

In "V-For-Victory" Vegetables

Alberta flowers and vegetables come in two varieties. There are (1) normal vegetables, and (2) subnormal, or "V" for Victory vegetables. There are many examples of each.

(1) Normal vegetables (or fruit):

In this class we find vegetables from such farms as the Steve Zaychuk farm at 50 street and 127 avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Zaychuk have operated a fruit farm in some part of the district for many years and both claim that this year's crop beats anything seen in past years. Outstanding are Concord grapes and raspberries that compare favorably with any seen in the province. Altogether there are 100 different species of fruit on the Zaychuk farm.

SUBNORMAL VEGETABLES

(2) Subnormal vegetables:

Two petite potatoes picked prudently from the garden of Eleanor McIntosh, 9, of 9736 97 street, were brought to The Bulletin office by Lil Eleanor and her best chum, Theresa Diewert, 10, of 9753 97 street. The potatoes had grown together into the shape of a "V" for victory. The girls attend Bennett school.

Alberta couch grass is tough but we didn't know how tough until one day this week B. F. Hatfield of 12503 127 street brought us a potato with a piece of the grass grown right through it, going in one side and out t'other.

Mrs. Arthur Cook, whose husband is manager of the Ideal laundry, 11514 129 street, owns a couple of potatoes joined in a "V". She also has a mushroom stem shaped like a "V". Good, eh eh!

Best Men Refuse Accept Offices

In its inability to persuade the best citizens to accept offices like the greatest weakness of democracy, J. T. S. Morris, secretary of the Canadian Federation of the Theosophical Society, stated last week during a series of two lectures in the Masonic temple. The speakers outlined the object's and principles of theosophy and their application to the life and welfare of the nation.

Office holders would have to begin their careers by holding positions in the smallest unit of government, he said. Nomination for a higher office would come from the office holder's associates, and he would be elected by those who have shown recognition of the greater needs of state. This process would be repeated, thus evolving a true aristocracy of the wise to lead mankind, Mr. Morris stated.

A new educational technique is needed for the new order of civilization which is evolving under the stress of current events, the speaker stated, and advocated the educational system of the Theosophists. Theosophy seeks to restore the brotherhood of men, Mr. Morris said. The goal towards which mankind is working under the laws of theosophy is indicated in the perfection to be found in the lives of the saints and sages, the speaker declared. Beyond them lie realms of greater awareness which pass beyond the expression of human thought.

Mr. Seversen complains that on August 5 he took out a subscription to "Iron Age" for which he paid $8.50 by cheque to the "agent", Nicholos M. Franklin.

On not receiving the magazine Mr. Seversen wrote the publishers, who state they never had the money turned over to them.

The bogus agent gave a Vancouver address to Mr. Seversen.

199 Children Given Care At Kiwanis Home

During the past year 199 boys and girls were admitted by the Kiwanis Home for Children, and 180 were discharged, Miss Hazel O. Mann, superintendent of the home, told members of the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon meeting in the Macdonald hotel, Monday.

There are at present 60 children in the home, ranging from three to 15 years of age, and residents of points in Northern Alberta, she said. Forty-seven of the children started off to school on Monday morning, at the commencement of the school term. Of them, five were going for the first time.

With Miss Mann at the luncheon was Henry Hoglund, blind boy of Yellowknife, N.W.T., who with nine other children is spending a few days in Edmonton, before going to east to special schools for blind, deaf and dumb children.

Hobbies of stamp collecting, making of scrapbooks, crayon work, sewing, knitting and dolls, continue to occupy the children's attention. According to their ages, they are also members of the Scouts and Cubs, the C.G.I.T. and the Junior Explorers.

During the past year, the children have saved $10 for the sale of bottles and other articles and have purchased two five-dollar war savings certificates with the money.

There has been little or no sickness at the Home during the past year, Miss Mann reported. Staff at the home consists of one cook, who is assisted in serving the 5,000 to 5,500 meals each month by some of the girls, the superintendent and her assistant, Miss A. McGregor, and four other staff members.

TRUSTEES

Trustees of the Kiwanis Home are Mayor John W. Fry; T. G. Campbell, president of the club; W. A. Bayley, chairman of the Kiwanis Children's Aid Society, and W. M. Fawcett, secretary-treasurer.

Minister Speaks On Harvest Theme

Charging the congregation "to remember that they live by the soil, come from it and are still not far from it", Rev. J. MacBeath Miller stated Sunday that city people tend to adopt a superior attitude towards their origin in the agricultural part of the nation. Rev. Mr. Miller spoke on "Harvest" during the Sunday morning service at First Presbyterian church.

One way this could be done was by instilling in children a "communne of God" and establishing for them a "Christian character mould," he added.

CKUA Application For License Made

Application by the University of Alberta radio station CKUA for a commercial broadcasting license is to be considered at a meeting of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation board of governors at Ottawa this week, it is learned here.

Last fall the University station commenced installation of a new transmitter calculated to step up its strength and place it on a parity with other stations of the province. This transmitter, estimated to cost about $30,000, was placed in operation last April.

Jewellers To Raise Money Buy Spitfires

Contributing on a "per dollar of gross sales" basis jewellers across Canada expect to raise sufficient funds to give to the British government four Spitfires, according to Stuart H. Lees, Hamilton, past president of the Canadian Jewellers' Association, who arrived here Monday on a business and pleasure trip.

Mr. Lees is confident that Edmonton will do its share in this appeal. All other points contributions ranging as high as $5,000 have already been made, he said.

The association expects to raise a fund of $100,000 through its members on contributions given on a basis of a half-cent on every dollar of gross sales last year or estimated sales this year.

Mr. Lees said that in spite of rationing difficulties British jewellers had provided several Spitfires for the British government, by this method.

Mr. Lees is president of George H. Lees and Co., Ltd., jewellers, with headquarters at Hamilton, Ont. He stated that business, especially in the sale of military emblems and high quality silverware, has been very good.

Mrs. Lees and their daughter, Constance, are with Mr. Lees. They are guests at the Macdonald. The party will proceed to Jasper and the coast Tuesday.

Mr. Berestovy told police he was awakened by a noise. Going to the window he saw a man crouched there who immediately hurled a brick inside the house. It broke a pane of glass 22 by 24 inches but did not injure any person in the house.

Police arrested a man later in the morning they think may have been responsible for the act.

Letter Addressed Round-About Way

Much can still be learned about the geography of the west of an address, even a letter written in St. Thomas, Ont., and received at the desk of the Macdonald hotel is any guide to go by.

It was addressed to a lady presumably somewhere in the west as it read "North Battleford, Saskatoon, Sask." Why did it arrive in Edmonton? Well, at the bottom left hand corner was the following caption: "Macdonald hotel. Please forward."
